AGAIN CHAMPIONS

HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN BEATS EAST DENVER.

BROUGHT THE HONORS HOME

DENVER LEAD IN FIRST HALF OF GAME.

WHIRLWIND WORK IN SECOND

Terrors Wind Up Season With Decisive Victory, Won by Splendid Playing—Big Crowd at Contest—Morrell, Harbert and Murphy Retire.

Outplaying their opponents in every department of the game, in the presence of 3,000 enthusiastic rooters, the Colorado Spring High school Terrors again won the Colorado interscholastic football championship, by defeating the East Denver High school eleven yesterday morning on Denver University field by a score of 14 to 6. Coach Richard's proteges put up the most remarkable football ever given by a High school team in Denver, and won with ease.

After allowing the first half of the game to close with score 6 to 4 in East Denver's favor, the local huskies, by a series of remarkable forward passes, piled up the score in their favor until the Denverites had no chance of winning. The feature of the game was Captain Morrell's punting. After kicking a Princeton in the first half, he repeated the performance in the second, and also kicked a goal from field.

During the second half, when the score stood 8 to 6 in the Terror's favor, Quarterback Randolph gave the ball to Hinton, right end, who, in a thrilling 20-yard run, rushed it over the Denver goal line for a touchdown. Time and again, the Terror's backs tore through the Denver lads' line for good gains. Murphy's work was exceptionally good. The locals' interference was faultless.

Denverites Worked Forward Pass.

The Denverites worked the forward pass for good gains during the first half, Right End Vandemoer making several good gains. But they were outclassed by the locals, who had an advantage in weight of 13 pounds. Cohen, of East Denver did some fine work for his team.

Forward passes were favorite plays with both teams, but the locals were too heavy for the Denverites and swept them from one goal line to the other. The local team's playing was almost faultless. During the first half, Vandemoer won the laurels for his team by making a touchdown, and his great gains through center brought him much applause from the Denver rooters. But in the end Coach Richards' training showed, and it was generally remarked that the Colorado Springs eleven would make a good showing against any college team.

Team's Splendid Showing.

The showing of the Colorado Springs High school eleven this season has been exceptionally good—probably the best in the history of the school. Last year their goal line was not crossed, even by Colorado college, until the deciding game of the season, when they won by a good margin, and were awarded the state championship. At the beginning of the season 1906 they set out to repeat their performance of last year, and their record for this year has been a good one. In the ten games which they have played, only two have been lost, and those were to Colorado college, by small scores. None of the High school teams has been able to stand against them, and at no time has their title to the state championship been in danger.

Game Retires Three Stars.

Yesterday's game marks the withdrawal from interscholastic football of three of the High school's star players—Captain Morrell, left tackle; Fred Harbert, who during the present season has played center; and Earl Murphy, the big full back. Captain Morrell is, without doubt, one of the best High school tackles in Colorado, and as captain, he has handled his team remarkably well. Harbert also has played tackle on the local team for three years, but owing to injuries received last year was shifted to center. He is possibly the best all-around man in the team, playing any position. Last year, besides playing tackle, he subbed as both full and half back. Murphy has played full back since he first made the team, and can always be relied upon to make good gain. He weighs 190 pounds.

The teams lined up as follows:

A RIOT NARROWLY AVERTED

Young Man Attacks "Heiney" Schmidt With Fists and Is Saved by Police.

At the football game at Washburn field yesterday afternoon, a riot was narrowly averted by the presence of two policemen and several gentlemen in the grandstand. When the game was at its highest pitch, Henry Schmidt, who was delegated to keep [illegible] on the side line behind the [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] of a well-dressed spectator, who refused to give his name, behind the ropes when that intruder took a notion that he was being handled in a rude manner and resented it by a swift right to Schmidt's right eye. In a moment the optic swelled to nearly three times its normal size, and looked as if some one had slipped an egg under the skin and painted it the color of a juicy plum. "Heiney," as Schmidt is familiarly known, was about to swing his club across the "chappy's" countenance when his friends stepped between and prevented the contemplated [illegible].

When the peacemakers learned the status of the case they immediately took after the "swell" and chased him in front of the grandstand.

His parents occupied box seats and the object of all eyes made one flying leap into the lap of his mother, who hugged her son close to her, begging the crowd to desist. Two of the local police who were on the grounds to keep order put in an appearance and, together with a coterie of gentlemen in the boxes, held the mob at bay till the young man made his escape.

YOUNG GIRL MURDERER

SHOOTS ENRAGED MAN WHO WIELDS KNIFE.

Fifteen-Year-Old Lass Kills Intruder and Protects Own Mother and Wife of Victim.

THORNTON, R. I., Nov. 29.—Ethel Smith, the 15-year-old daughter of Special Policeman Leander Smith, is under arrest tonight at the home of Chief of Police Howland Kimball, charged with killing Elmer Briggs, a resident of Thornton. The circumstances of the killing were such that after being obliged to arrest the child Chief Kimball took her to his house, gave her a Thanksgiving dinner, and declared that she should not go to jail as long as she was under his jurisdiction.

The tragedy today was the culmination of an estrangement between Briggs and his wife. About two weeks ago Briggs is alleged to have deserted his wife, leaving her without money for herself and her three children. Special Officer Smith took pity on the destitute woman and he and his wife received Mrs. Briggs and her children into their home and were arranging to send them to the home of Mrs. Briggs' mother in Niantic. This afternoon during the absence of Smith, Briggs arrived at the Smith house and demanded admission. Charles Halliday, a negro cook, started to bring Chief of Police Kimball to the scene, leaving in the house Mrs. Briggs and her children, Mrs. Smith and Ethel. The women and children, fearing that Briggs would force an entrance, locked all the doors and windows.

Ethel procured her father's revolver. As soon as Halliday was out of sight Briggs again demanded admittance. This being refused, he drew a large carving knife from beneath his coat and cut away the netting from the screen on the front door. He then smashed a pane of glass in the door, reached through and threw back the bolt. As he entered Ethel fired two shots at him, both bullets lodging in his body. Briggs hesitated for a moment and then kept on. The child fired three more shots, every bullet taking effect and Briggs staggered back and fell dead.

KILLED IN WRECK

SIX FATALITIES IN LYNCHBURG COLLISION.

SAMUEL SPENCER A VICTIM

PRESIDENT OF SOUTHERN RAILWAY KILLED INSTANTLY.

MANY PASSENGERS INJURED

Occupants of "Jim Crow" Car Escape Unhurt — Wreckage Takes Fire and Burns Up—Recovered Bodies Are Badly Charred. Operator Is Blamed.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Nov. 29.—Samuel Spencer, president of the Southern Railway company, and recognized as one of the foremost men in the development of the southern states, and six other persons were killed early this morning in a rear-end collision between two fast passenger trains, ten miles south of Lynchburg and a mile north of Lawyers depot. Phillip Schuyler, a retired capitalist of New York, was among the killed, together with other guests of Mr. Spencer. Of those on Mr. Spencer's car, only Mr. Spencer's private secretary, E. A. Merrill, of New York, and one of three porters survived the accident. The dead:

PRESIDENT SAMUEL SPENCER, New York.
CHARLES D. FISHER, Baltimore.
PHILLIP SCHUYLER, New York.
FRANCIS T. REDWOOD, Baltimore.
D. W. DAVIS, Alexandria, Va., private dispatcher to President Spencer.
J. SHAW, fireman; crushed and both legs broken; died later in hospital.
An unknown person, whose head and limbs are burned off short, who is believed to be the third porter on the private car, who is missing. His name can not be learned.

The injured:
Lucretia Allen, colored, Danville, Va., leg cut off and arm broken.
Willis Johnston, New York, leg broken.
William Pollard, negro porter, on President Spencer's car.
Garland Thomas, colored, Greensboro, N. C., leg broken.
P. E. Vauls, colored, Waynesboro, Va., crushed.
Cora Logan, colored, Shelby, N. C., both legs broken.
Sam Cox, colored, porter on private car, leg broken.
John W. Cruett, Baltimore, supreme organizer of the Heptasophs, back badly wrenched.
Preston Bane, address unknown.
Sam Hoglan, colored, Charlotte, N. C., bruised.
E. A. Medill, New York, private secretary to President Spencer, head and arms burned; will recover.

Victims Were Asleep.

The collision was between the Jacksonville express and the Washington & Southwestern vestibule limited, both southbound. President Spencer and his entire party, so far as is known, were sleeping when the collision occurred, and the probabilities are that all of the occupants with the exception of Dispatcher Davis, were killed instantly. It is certain that life was extinct before the flames touched them.

President Spencer's body was burned almost beyond recognition, as was that of Mr. Fisher.

The body of Mr. Schuyler was recovered before it was burned very much.

President Spencer's car was attached to the rear of the Jacksonville train, which was standing still when struck.

"Jim Crow" Passengers Escape.

President Spencer's charred corpse was found under the big locomotive of the rear train. So great was the force of the impact that the forward train was sent at least 150 feet ahead. Until the debris had burned itself out and the engine cooled off, the bodies could not be removed.

The combination car of the rear train crashed into the express car ahead of it. Forty feet of it was splintered, leaving the rest of the car strewn with tons of baggage and colored passengers, who were jammed back by the express car. How the negro passengers in the "Jim Crow" part of the train escaped death is beyond explanation. The wreck occurred on the crest of a steep grade. The Atlanta train could not have been running more than 30 miles an hour. Had it been a mile or two further south the number of dead might have been frightful as the train was about two hours late, a condition taken with the down-grade that would have meant a speed of more than 60 miles an hour.

It was reported at first that Engineer Kinney, who was in charge of the engine on the Atlanta train, was killed, but this proved incorrect. He suffered only a few cuts and bruises.

At the general offices of the Southern railway this morning the following statement regarding the wreck was issued:

Operator Blamed.

"Southern Railway passenger train No. 33 left Washington last night late, by reason of congested holiday traffic. About 6:30 a. m. today at Lawyers, Va., on a portion of the road, protected by block system, train was stopped for slight repairs to a coupling. Passenger train No. 37, following No. 33, and being given a clear block, ran into the rear of No. 33, resulting in a serious wreck. Our present advices indicate the collision was probably due to negligence of the operator in allowing No. 37 to pass the block. President Samuel Spencer, of the Southern railway company, and a party of friends, were in an officers' car at the rear of No. 33.

$10,000 IN JEWELS STOLEN

Fake Telephone Call Enables Thief to Get in His Work.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Ten thousand dollars worth of jewelry was stolen last night from two boarders in the fashionable boarding house at 33 East Twenty-second street by thieves who worked an entirely new game on the man at the door.

It was dinner time, and Miss Marie Hudgins, who lives in the place with her mother, and Miss Ehrman [illegible] in the dining room, when the hall boy, Julius Henry, colored, answered a call at the door. As he was about to ask the caller for his card the telephone, which is in another room, rang. The boy excused himself to the caller and rushed to the telephone. When he returned, having answered an inquiry for someone who was not known in the house, the caller was gone. Later Miss Hudgins and Miss Ehrmann discovered that their rooms had been entered and jewelry valued at $10,000 stolen.

PROMPT STEPS TAKEN

SCANDAL OF FAMINE RELIEF CONTRACT TO BE AIRED.

Premier Stolypin Calls Special Meeting of the Council of Ministers to Discuss Affair.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 29.—Prompt steps have been taken by Premier Stolypin to deal with the famine relief contract scandal, in which one Lidval and M. Gurko, assistant minister of the interior, are involved. The premier has called a special meeting of the council of ministers for tomorrow to discuss the affair. M. Gurko has resigned. When he presented his resignation the premier told him he should not quit office, but that for his own sake, at least, he must face the court.

The premier is expected to appoint an interministerial commission, composed of assistant ministers, to investigate the case. He will then bring it before the first department of the senate in public session. Orders have been given to collect evidence and cross-examine all persons connected with the affair. A certain Sotskich, an assistant of Lidval, in buying grain in the provinces, also has been summoned by the minister of the interior, but has failed to answer and is thought to be in hiding.

The Novoe Vremya has published an article pointing out the inevitable peril to the good name of the cabinet and the impossibility of Mr. Gurko remaining in office. "With a thoughtlessness that can not be reconciled to the solemn responsibility of his high office, Mr. Gurko made a confidant of a chance acquaintance picked up in shady company, a man much given to card playing. If error is worse than a crime," the paper says, "and if the thoughtlessness should be punished, such men should not be endured in a ministry which purposes to win through the purity of its motive and the impeccability of its deeds."

The unhesitating fashion in which the premier is handling this affair will, it is believed, strengthen the cabinet instead of injuring it at the approaching elections.

REFUSED TO COAL THE SHIP

Mutiny Occurs on Board the Tennessee. Poor Rations Is Cause of Trouble.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 29.—Men from the cruisers Tennessee and Washington, which convoyed President Roosevelt on his trip to Panama and back, while in Norfolk today, declared that the alleged mutiny on the Tennessee occurred while the cruiser was being coaled on the isthmus for the return trip homeward and not during the trip. They said the men on the Tennessee, alleging poor and unsatisfactory rations, refused to coal the ship. The marine guard was ordered out and, according to the men here, the marines stood with pointed guns, threatening to shoot the first man who quit his post during the coaling of the cruiser. The coaling was in this way completed and as a result of the alleged mutiny, 100 men were placed in the brig. These, however, according to the report today, were released when the homeward start was begun. All is now declared to be quiet on the cruiser Tennessee. There was no trouble among the men on the Washington. It was declared that the Washington on the homeward trip had two breakdowns. Her starboard engine, it is said, broke before the Florida coast was reached. This was repaired and by forced draft she caught up to the Louisiana and Tennessee, three hours ahead.

ATTEMPT MURDER

SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST U. P. COAL COMPANY

MYENDORFF INTENDED VICTIM

A. J. SMITH, OF DENVER, MAKES STARTLING STATEMENT.

OPPOSED LAND FRAUD INQUIRY

Sensational Features Expected at Hearing in Denver Next Week Before E. E. Clark, Interstate Commerce Commissioner. Inquiry to Continue.

DENVER, Nov. 29.—Attempted murder of a government agent in Denver may be added to the long list of perjuries, thefts of coal lands and intimidations charged against the Union Pacific Coal company, at a hearing which will be held before Edward E. Clark, interstate commerce commissioner, in the federal building, Denver, next Monday, December 3.

A. J. Smith of the Smith-Bradbury Mining company, Bank block, says that Michael A. Myendorff, the government detective who testified in Salt Lake City yesterday that Senators F. E. Warren and C. D. Clark of Wyoming urged him to abandon the investigation into the Union Pacific Coal company land frauds, was drugged and nearly died when he was here a year ago unearthing the frauds.

Myendorff Drugged.

Mr. Smith says that it looked as if an attempt was made to poison Myendorff. Incriminating papers which were in Myendorff's grip disappeared, but Mr. Smith had the originals of the documents, so that no evidence was lost. Later efforts were made to rifle Mr. Smith's desk.

Mr. Smith says that while Mr. Myendorff was on his way to the Union depot, after almost completing the investigation into the coal land frauds committed in Denver, he stopped in a saloon on Seventeenth street to get a drink. The liquor was poisoned and he immediately became unconscious. Mr. Myendorff was removed to a hospital, where it was not thought that he would live. The drug was so powerful that he was ill for several months and is just feeling well again.

Two attempts are also alleged to have been made to poison A. F. Abbott, general manager of the Peerless Copper Extraction company, who is one of the three Denver men responsible for the investigation of the Union Pacific which is going forward.

It is alleged that on two occasions while eating in restaurants in Rock Springs, Wyo., poisoned food was given him. Once Mr. Abbott was unconscious for half an hour from the effects of the poison. After that Mr. Abbott would not go to Rock Springs and would not venture alone into Wyoming.

The three Denver men who are responsible for the investigation are A. J. Smith of the Smith-Bradbury Mining company, Bank block; A. F. Abbott, Peerless Copper company, Bank block, and W. H. Canniff, secretary of the Sioux City and Rock Springs Coal company, and also secretary of the Crystal Theater company, Denver.

W. I. Gifford, formerly Denver agent of the Union Pacific Coal company, and now a resident of Durango, Colo., who is alleged to have secured the signatures of 81 Denver bums and tramps to relinquishments, affidavits, power of attorney, etc., for quarter sections of coal lands in Sweetwater county, Wyoming, is being investigated.

Professes Ignorance.

Most of these papers are alleged to have been acknowledged by H. Teller, son of United States Senator Henry M. Teller, who acted as notary public. In the hearing before the interstate commerce commission held in Denver last September, Mr. Teller professed ignorance of the law which forbids notaries public violating the law by taking acknowledgments from "dummy" men where public lands are involved.

The fact that Mr. Teller has testified makes him immune from punishment. The attorneys of the interstate commerce commission would not permit Mr. Gifford to testify when the hearing was held here, and it is said that he will not be given an opportunity to testify at the coming session.

The 81 tramps and bums, who were herded together by Victor Labat, a saloonkeeper at Twenty-first and Larimer streets, and a man named Mosenholder, and taken to the office of the Union Pacific Coal company, will not be prosecuted. They for the most part did not know that they were violating the law. These men were paid $3 and $4 each by the Union Pacific, according to testimony already given.

On November 23, 1905, A. J. Smith, A. F. Abbott and W. H. Canniff began unearthing frauds of the Union Pacific Coal company, perpetrated in Wyoming. These men were interested in the development of coal properties in that country. The Union Pacific officials would not permit them to do business, and as an act of retaliation the Denverites determined to reveal all the frauds which they knew existed.

About a year ago Michael A. Myendorff, a Russian, 45 years of age, one of the shrewdest land detectives in the employ of the government, was sent to Denver, and he worked on the Union Pacific case with Mr. Smith. They discovered that 81 tramps in Denver had made false [illegible] in the interest of the co[illegible] [illegible] Union Pacific induced head officials of the land department to withdraw Myendorff from Colorado. He was ordered to Utah, and later to California. While obeying the orders of his superiors to leave Denver without delay, Mr. Myendorff was drugged and robbed.

An effort will be made to establish the fact that the Union Pacific Railroad company would not permit any but the Union Pacific Coal company to develop coal lands in Wyoming. E. H. Harriman, owner of the Union [illegible] of the fact that the Union Pacific companies were restraining trade by refusing to permit competing companies to do business in that state. At the hearing held in Denver in September, Frank Vaughan of Denver testified that Mr. Harriman knew of at least one case in which a company was refused the right to do business.

The case against the Union Pacific is almost completed. The inquiry is being made by virtue of the Tillman-Gillespie senate resolution, passed during the last session of congress. The commission will report its findings to the president and to congress, and the department of justice will no doubt be instructed to prosecute all persons whom the committee may charge with participation in the frauds.

AN EMPHATIC DENIAL

G. F. POLLOCK INDIGNANT AT MYENDORFF.

Says Charges That Evidence Against Union Pacific Coal Co. Had Been Destroyed, Is Untrue.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—An emphatic contradiction was made here today by George F. Pollock, of the interior department, of allegations in the affidavit made at Salt Lake yesterday by M. A. Myendorff, a special agent of the government, that Pollock had instructed Myendorff to destroy four affidavits he had procured against the Union Pacific Coal company in the coal land fraud investigation in Utah. Mr. Pollock issued a statement in which he said:

"Mr. Pollock says that the statements contained in the morning papers reflecting on his conduct and motives in connection with the above matter are absolutely untrue. He states most emphatically that he has never personally nor officially by direction or suggestion, nor by any act of commission or intended omission, aided or countenanced a failure to prosecute or the suppression of any prosecution of the investigation referred to.

"Mr. Pollock characterizes the statement that he advised Mr. Myendorff to destroy the affidavits alluded to, as wilfully false. He affirms that he never saw and was never informed of any affidavits that did not in due and regular course become and remain part of the records of the office; that he gave Myendorff no instructions whatever in regard to the investigation except as expressed in official letters, which are on file in the land office. No other advice to him was necessary as the well-established rules of the office instructed him fully as to his duty."

TWO KILLED; FOUR HURT

RUNAWAY ENGINE CAUSES TWO WRECKS.

After Crashing Into Passenger Train, Being Reversed, It Backs Into Freight Cars.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Nov. 29.—A runaway engine in the Canadian Northern yards today caused two wrecks, killed two men and seriously injured four others.

As the Northern Pacific train from St. Paul was steaming into the yards an hour behind time, Engineer Young was horrified to see a switch engine bearing down on him at full speed. Both engineers reversed, so the collision was comparatively slight. The passenger engine was badly wrecked and the train derailed, but only two injuries were reported, a woman passenger sustaining a badly sprained back and the fireman being cut on the head.

The most serious and peculiar part of the accident was to follow. When the switch engine was reversed, Engineer English and Fireman Hunt jumped to save themselves and in the collision the engine bounded back, the throttle open, and tore madly back toward the station. The engineer rushed to a nearby telephone, but almost before he could get connection, the big engine was doing deadly work. The flagman at the bridge saw the runaway rush by in a cloud of steam and smoke, but he was helpless. Across the river it continued its mad career and straight down the main track on which stood the "flyer" ready for its trip south. A switchman saw the runaway and the danger of its crashing into the passenger train and pulled a lever, shunting it down another track, forgetting that thereon stood many freight cars. Two men were killed. Four others were so badly hurt that their recovery is doubtful. One man has not been accounted for, but it is believed he escaped. The dead men are William Neill and Mike Medlow. The injured are all foreigners.

RUTHLESSLY MISTREATED

New York Colored Pastor Alludes to Members of Troops as Brave, Heroic and Self-Sacrificing—Infers That World's Peacemaker Lost His Head.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—At a union Thanksgiving service, in which the members of four negro churches of this city participated today, President Roosevelt was denounced for his action in dismissing three companies of negro soldiers from the United States army. At the conclusion of the service, which was held in the Mount Olivet Baptist church, nearly every one present made a contribution to a fund which is being raised for the relief of the dismissed soldiers. The sermon of the day was preached by the Rev. A. H. Brooks, pastor of St. Marks A. M. E. church. In the course of his address, Mr. Brooks said:

Appears in True Colors.

"It has been the pretense and contention of the south that the shiftless and ignorant negro was the one she despised; but the real south appeared in her true colors when she took pains to run down, humiliate and outrage the most intelligent, thrifty and upright people of the community. This was scarcely over before the chief magistrate of the nation covered himself with eternal shame and disgrace by his unjust, unkind, undemocratic, un-American and czarocratic, cold, cruel, drastic and infamous orders against as brave, as heroic, as self-sacrificing a set of colored gentlemen as ever wore the blue or bore 'old glory' on a field of strife.

Denounce Act as Outrage.

"We will not be resentful nor revengeful, but we are bold enough to denounce the act as an outrage and aggressive enough to demand justice at the highest court of earth and before the bar of heaven. Let him of the 'square deal' deal square; him of the 'fair play' play fair; him of the 'door of opportunity' not shut it and bolt it forever in the face of black veterans.

"Has the world's peacemaker lost his head and tired of his job, that he can ruthlessly mistreat a suffering, hysterical woman on the one hand, and outrage a battalion of soldiers on the other—soldiers to whose faithfulness he owes his life? If 'peaching' on comrades is such a soldierly virtue, he should have a chair of peachment in West Point, Annapolis and especially at Harvard.

"But in spite of all, we have reason to be thankful, for again we have disappointed the world, for the soldiers in disgrace have acted as brave men, not resentful children; thankful that the press of the country, with few exceptions, has condemned such drastic measures; that the conservative people north and south do not countenance such impulsive actions.

By Ballot and Not by Vengeance.

"If a Republican congress refuses to correct the wrongs thus inflicted, every black man in the south ought to pack up his belongings and move to a doubtful state and vote the whole thing out of existence. It is by the ballot and not by vengeance we shall win."

Among the wounded are about 200 employes of the factory, and the total of persons dangerously and slightly injured amounts to several hundred. Boston Fighter Suffers Injury in Twelfth.

BOSTON, Nov. 29.—Honey Mellody, of Charleston defeated Joe Walcott of Boston, [illegible] A. C. [illegible] to-night. In the twelfth round Walcott quit. He said later that his left arm became disabled in the ninth round, and that it was impossible for him to continue.

The men fought at 142 pounds. While the contest developed into a slugging match in the first round, Mellody's exhibition of foot work and blocking was splendid. Walcott appeared confused and was unable to land a telling blow until the fifth round.

In the sixth Mellody came back like a whirlwind. A punch to the head, combined with a slip, sent the negro to the floor. He was up immediately, but a second later Mellody landed a left to the jaw that forced Walcott against the ropes.

In the eleventh Mellody put in punches at will, and in the twelfth sent rights and lefts into the negro's stomach. Before the round was over Walcott plainly was in distress. He turned and walked to his own corner. After Referee Sheehan had declared Mellody the winner Walcott gave the explanation that in the ninth round his left arm had become disabled.

Famous Trotting Mare Sold to Stotesbury.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Sweet Marie, the famous trotting mare, with the record of 2:02, was sold at the Old Glory horse sale at Madison Square Garden today for $14,000, and George M. Webb, manager for E. SERIES OF SOCCER GAMES

Intercollegiate and International Games at New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—An intercollegiate and international series of "soccer" football games was begun today at the Bronx oval. It will be continued tomorrow and Saturday. Two games were played. In the first Columbia defeated Yale, 4 to 0. Yale showed decided improvement in the second period. The halves were each 30 minutes long.

The second game was between a picked team of New York players and the University of Toronto eleven. Neither side scored in the first half, and the New York men were the first to make a goal in the second. Toward the end of the game the Canadians scored twice.

GANS AND NELSON SETTLE UP

Controversy Over Fight Films Arranged Amicably.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 29.—Gans and Nelson, the pugilists who, with their managers, have been contesting over the profits from the exhibition of pictures of their last fight, settled their differences at a conference here today.

The criminal proceedings against Nolan, Nelson's manager, will be dropped. The money which was the cause of dispute has been divided, Gans securing the larger portion. The fight picture films were also divided, Nelson securing two which he can exhibit only abroad, Gans retaining exclusive right to show the pictures in the United States and Canada.

INDIANS, 18; VIRGINIA, 17

A Missed Goal Prevents Virginia From Tying.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 29.—Seven thousand people saw Carlisle defeat Virginia here today by a score of 18 to 17.

A missed goal prevented Virginia's tying the score. Virginia made the first touchdown on a blocked kick and three line rushes. Her other scores were made by Johnson and Honaker in runs of eighty yards.

The Indians scored through Mount Pleasant and Little Boy by hammering the line on two instances and on a fifty-yard run.

BOULDER TIES MINERS

EXCITING GAME AT DENVER YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Lack of Respect for Training Rules Given as Reason for Scoreless Game.

Special to The Gazette.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 29.—In a fierce football contest on University field this afternoon, without either goal line being crossed, the Golden School of Mines played a 1 to 1 game with the University of Colorado, from Boulder. Many exciting features marked the battle, the Miners having the better of the argument, but, on account of a lack of fidelity to the training rules in the past week, were unable to score against the Boulder eleven. The Miners had the ball within striking distance of the Boulder goal four times, but could not overcome the strong defense of the university team at the critical time. The 'Varsity eleven did not even menace the Miners' goal, as the former were weak on offensive play, but when their own goal line was threatened they stood solidly together and kept the line freed from the intruder.

The Miners were not in the same trim condition as when they met the Colorado college Tigers, and when the opportunities for scoring were presented the Golden players promptly threw away their chances for victory. Hammel, who did the punting for the Mines eleven, was unusually nervous when trying for goals from the field. This was caused by the aggressiveness of the Boulder center, who would invariably shove the Mines center back into the play, and make a rush in the direction of the ball. Farnsworth, who did center rush work for the university team, worried Evans, the Mines center, all through the game, and put up the best exhibition of work at that position that has been seen on a Denver gridiron this year.

In the first half the Boulder eleven showed its wonderful training in tackling by catching and throwing his opponent before he got beyond the line of scrimmage, but in the second half the tackling was high and not near so effective. On the whole, however, Boulder exhibited a wonderful defense, and took the Miners by surprise in this department of the game, but the Boulderites weer woefully weak on offense, and that practically explains the tie score that resulted.

One of the features of the game was the splendid system of rooting used by both teams' followers. The cheers and yells were of the systematized order, such as has never been used in Denver before. The seprent dance and march o fthe rooters between the halves was quite out of the ordinary, and something worth while.

Summary of Ground Gained.

BEAT THE TIGERS

DENVER UNIVERSITY WON A HARD-FOUGHT GAME.

COLLEGE WAS OUTGENERALED

MACK AND MORRIS DID BEST WORK FOR LOCALS.

CONTEST INTENSELY EXCITING

Tigers Played Excellent Straight Football, but Strategic Work of Opponents Seemed to Baffle Them—Crowd Big and Enthusiastic.

In a game filled with many spectacular plays and many that were very inferior as far as the local team was concerned, Denver university accomplished the defeat of Colorado college on Washburn field yesterady afternoon by the score of 7 to 6. A crowd of 2,000 persons assembled at the local gridiron to enjoy what purported to be a Thanksgiving day treat, under a sky of azure blue, and in an almost balmy atmosphere, but was sadly disappointed. Instead of a treat, the game proved to be a pill of the most bitter and particularly hard-to-swallow sort. As opportunity after opportunity presented itself for the college to make the final game of the schedule a triumph, the collegians failed to accept them, and it was apparent near the end that this was not the day for the college. There were moments during the contest that the excitement ran at fever heat, and everybody's nerves were at the highest tension imaginable, waiting breathlessly for the score that never came. Time and time again the Tigers got the ball within striking distance of the Denver goal, only to fail at the crucial moment on a badly selected play, demonstrate their inability to execute a good one that would snatch victory from the Denverites. Fate was against the Tigers, and they seemed doomed.

The game from a spectator's standpoint would ordinarily have been all that could have been asked for, but, unfortunately, the majority of those present at Washburn field yesterday afternoon were Colorado college enthusiasts, and the main reason of their appearance on the field was to see the Tigers win. Although they had many good chances to do so, the chances were refused, and as a result the local college team was defeated.

In spite of the disappointment of the crowd, the game was full of brilliant plays and sensational runs on both sides, and was a contest well worth seeing.

Willey's Sensational Run.

The play that should be placed at the top of the list for sensational runs, and which was the longest seen in a local college game this year, was made by Willey, of Denver. He received the ball on a forward pass on his own 35-yard line, and, surrounded by three huskies from his own team, dashed down the field for a distance of 70 yards. He would have crossed the Tiger goal line for a touchdown had not Cary, the speedy right tackle of the Tigers, by an almost superhuman effort, intercepted and downed him, near the corner of the field, three yards from the goal line. This play occurred a few minutes after the first half had opened, when the Tigers had bucked the ball up the

MOST SENSATIONAL FINISH IN PENN'S HISTORY.

Ithacans Have Ball Near Line on Several Occasions but Fail to Advance It.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—Penn 0, Cornell 0.—With the ball within one yard of the home team's goal line, the annual game between the Penn and Cornell football elevens, on Franklin field today, came to an end without either side being able to score. The finish of the contest with Penn fighting desperately to ward off defeat was as sensational a piece of football play as has been seen on the gridiron in a long time. Twice Cornell had the ball in the last few minutes within one yard of the Penn line and victory appeared to be certain, but Philadelphia held her each time by a defense that was as impressive as it was sensational. There were but a few minutes of time left when Hollenbach for Penn kicked against the wind to the home team's 48-yard line, where a Cornell man got the ball. Two line plays and a quarterback kick put the ball on Penn's 15-yard line. Here the Ithacans tried for a forward pass. Hollenbach intercepted the pass, but was unable to hold the ball, and Van Orman for Cornell was on the 1-yard line. It seemed as if nothing could stop her, but on the next plunge into the line the Penn men held and Cornell dropped in her tracks. It was then Penn's ball on downs. With great relief the Penn sympathizers let out a great roar at the stand made by the home players, which was quickly changed to a cry of alarm when Penn decided not to take a chance to carry the ball with it practically on her goal line, and Hollenbach was sent far back of the goal posts to kick. He was directly behind the crossbar and in order to avoid it he kicked to one side. The punt was a bad one and, aided by the stiff wind, which was blowing diagonally across the field, the ball went out of bounds about two yards from the goal line.

With the ball in her possession two yards from Penn's goal line, victory looked certain this time for Cornell. The Ithacans made a yard on the first play and the second play was without result. The ball was then on the Quaker's 1-yard line. Cornell had one more try remaining and only a few seconds left in which to do it. Gardiner here was sent in to take Jamison's place at quarterback for Cornell. Penn was in the last ditch and desperate. As the Cornell men got into position, the Penn men crouched low and there was a deathlike silence in the stands. The signal was given, the teams crushed against one another and half of Cornell's players on top of the struggling mass of men spilled over Penn's goal line. As the teams played into each other the timekeeper's whistle announced the end of the game. Everyone believed Cornell had won, but when the referee and umpire had finally separated the struggling players and got to the bottom of the pile they found a Cornell man hugging the ball a foot short of the line of victory. Cornell's spirit fell and the enthusiasm of the Penn spectators knew no bounds.

Outside of the desperate finish, the game did not afford either side much opportunity for cheering.

Both teams came on the field at 2 o'clock and were enthusiastically cheered by the spectators. At that time the stands were only a little more than half filled, but the crowd was coming in so fast that the great circle of seats were all occupied shortly after the game began.

THE ALL-WESTERNS BEATEN

Massilon Ohio Tigers Turn the Trick at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The football game here today between the Massilon Ohio Tigers and the All-Western eleven was won by the former by a score of 10 to 4.

Both teams were made up of former college stars, the Massilon eleven being much the heavier. The game, especially in the second half, was roughly played, Heston, formerly of Michigan, sustaining a fracture of one of the small bones of the right ankle, and Roseth, formerly of Wisconsin, received a dislocation of the right shoulder.

In the first half the scoring of the Massilon team was made by Davidson, who scored a drop kick from the twenty-yard line. In the second half, Hare of the All-Western eleven made a drop kick from the thirty-five-yard line, and for Massilon, Parrott made a touchdown. The game was poorly attended.

The lineup was as follows:

BEZENAH WINS OVER O'LEARY

Gets Decision After 10 Hotly-Contested Rounds.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 29.—Andy Bezenah of Cincinnati was given the decision over Jack O'Leary of Milwaukee after a ten-round bout before the Badger A. C. this evening. The Cincinnati boxer was the aggressor throughout. Only in two rounds, the second and the eighth, did O'Leary make a favorable showing. Bezenah landed two blows to one for O'Leary and got the better of several hot mixups.

SECONDS THREW UP SPONGE

Kearns Loses to Thompson in Third Round.

VICTOR, Nov. 29.—The Grand opera house was well filled tonight to witness the 20-round contest between Jack Kearns, of Seattle and Maurice Thompson, of Portland. Kearn's seconds threw up the sponge in the third round. There were two preliminary events, both of which clearly pleased the audience. Lute Kellogg, of this city, and Tom Jones, of Independence, gave a fine exhibition of slugging. Jones' second threw up the sponge at the end of the third round. Both men received considerable punishment. Kid Dutch and Kid MacDonald, two local light weights, fought interesting rounds to a draw. The main event between Kearns and Thompson was very disappointing to the crowd, Thompson clearly outclassing his opponent. Thompson in the third round, knocked Kearns to the floor and, as the seconds were being counted, Kearns' second threw up the sponge.

PLAYED IN STEADY SHOWER

Kansas and Missouri Are Unable to Cross the Line.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 29.—In a steady downpour of rain and on a muddy field, neither the University of Missouri football team nor the Kansas university eleven was able to score in their annual game here today. The game was merely a punting match, and only eight yards were gained in the first half on straight football.

The ball was kept almost continually in Missouri's territory and Kansas was often threatening the Missouri goal line. In the last half Missouri defended the muddiest end of the field, where it was almost impossible to make a gain.

field from the kick-off, and seemed to be marching to the visitors' goal by leaps and bounds. It changed the whole complexion of the game, but had the effect of making the now desperate Tigers fight like caged animals determined to gain their freedom. The Denver eleven had just three yards to gain to cross the line, and it took as many downs to pierce the stonewall defense, arranged by Coach Richards for just such an emergency. The defense, borne of desperation, was futile, and Brusse, the big full back of the Denver team, refused to be denied, and on the third attack gathered himself together for the final plunge, and landed behind the goal line, with the ball clutched tightly in his powerful arms. The attempt at a punt-out for goal failed, and Denver had to be satisfied with 5 points.

College Played Desperately.

For the college, side Mack made several long runs, one of which, for 40 yards, put the ball on Denver's 10 yard line. This play occurred near the end of the second half, after Denver had held the lead for nearly two-thirds of the game. Every advance of the Tigers forward served to revive the dying hopes of the disappointed spectators. An exchange of punts gave the Tigers the ball in mid-field and Fisher, who was directing the fortunes of the college, called Mack to receive a forward pass. The clever left end responded with alacrity, and, catching the the pass on the 50-yard line, sped off like a hound toward the Denver goal. He seemed to have a clear field, but the visitors' quarterback gave chase, and brought him down near the side lines ten yards from the Denver goal. But his brilliant run went for naught, as Richards' eleven could not gain consistently, and lost the ball on downs.

Summing up the playing of both elevens, it must be conceded that the local team was outplayed in general by Denver. Denver was much quicker in executing its plays, and seldom hesitated in deciding what play to make, and made it on the spur of the moment. Consultations and reversal of signals were frequent on the part of the local eleven which went to prove that Denver had the headier team. At crucial moments the college failed, while Denver never once faltered. In catching and running back punts, Denver was far superior to the local back field men, who seemed to stand in awe, watching the punts sail through the air instead of getting in the game and blocking their opponents, or assisting the man with the ball.

Tigers Played Straight Football.

It cannot be gainsaid that the Tigers played the better game as far as straight football was concerned, as they gained three times as much ground on bucks and end runs as did the visitors. But the new rules call for a more strategic game and less of the straight tactics that have predominated in former years. It takes nearly three times as much physical energy to gain ground by the old rules, while a clever forward pass executed with skill will offset the advantage gained by the old time methods of play. Denver seemed throughout the game to bear this fact in mind. In punting, Denver had a slight advantage, as many of Morgan's kicks fell so short of their usual distance. Hatfield and Fisher were slow to start after catching the punts, though it must be said in justice to Fisher that he was in no condition to give his best efforts, as he had an injured foot, and could do nothing more than hobble around with great difficulty and pain.

Draper and Hedblom were the stars of the college line, opening up holes in the opponents' line big enough for a two-horse team to go through. Morris and Lennox took advantage of these holes as often as they were called upon to carry the ball, and most of the successful bucks that were made passed through the right side of the Denver line.

The Tigers suffered extreme penalties at the hands of the officials just when they struck a winning gait, and many expressed the opinion that they were perhaps a trifle too severe, all things considered.

Game in Detail.

In the first half Denver started off by kicking to the Tigers, who advanced the ball on bucks and end runs up the field to Denver's 20-yard line. The rapidity with which the spheroid was advanced was remarkable and it looked as if a touchdown would result in a few more plays. Just at this juncture, however, the Tigers tried a forward pass, which failed, the ball going to the visitors. After being unsuccessful in making any impression on the Tiger line, Denver punted. Several bucks by Morris and Lennox netted 14 yards for the locals, but an unfortunate fumble gave the ball to Denver on its own 10-yard line.

Denver made slight gains off of tackle, and then one of the star forward passes of the game occurred. Brusse received a forward pass near the side lines, surrounded by three colleagues, and it looked like a sure touchdown, for he had a clear field before him. He succeeded in covering 67 yards before Cary, the Tiger right tackle caught up with him by a terrific burst of speed and downed him on the 3-yard line. It took three attempts to make the three remaining yards, and the ball was only a foot over the line, but it counted as the first touchdown of the game in favor of Denver. A punt-out for a try at goal was fumbled by the visitors, and they lost their opportunity for a goal from touchdown.

On the next kick-off Denver received the ball and brought it back ten yards. A peculiar formation was tried by the Denverites, who left but one man on the scrimmage line and shifted several others to the left end even with the ball, lining up the quarterback with the other backs behind the line. This is the first time this formation has been seen on a local gridiron, and some were of the opinion that it was an illegal formation, but the referee decided otherwise. The shift play failed, however, and the collegians secured the ball on a fumble on the Buchtel men's 40-yard line.

The Tigers, after making several first downs on bucks, released the ball on an on-side kick to the Denverites, who immediately kicked for 60 yards, the ball passing over Hatfield's head and rolling a considerable distance. The Tigers fumbled in their attempt to advance the ball, and Denver got the pigskin. Denver was penalized 5 yards for off-side play. The college recovered the ball, and in an attempted forward pass gave the ball to Denver, Renick catching the pass which was meant for Cort. Denver now had the ball on the local 40-yard line and punted, the pigskin bounding up around the players near the Tiger goal. While all hands were reaching for it, Denver pushed Cort over the line, making a safety, which counted the last two points of the visitors' score.

A kick-out from the 25-yard line resulted in Hedblom securing the ball on the visitors' 35-yard line. An additional 20 yards gain accrued to the college on straight plays, when the Tigers were held for downs. D. U. then punted, and after small gains by the college, Denver got the ball on a fumble and tried a forward pass, which failed, the college scooping in the ball. A forward pass by Fisher netted 25 yards, and Mack made 10 more on an end run. The ball was now on D. U.'s 35-yard line, and a score seemed imminent, but the Denver line held the college for downs. The half ended as D. U. punted to the college 40-yard line.

Second Half.

The Tigers kicked off to Denver, the latter team bringing back the ball ten yards. Denver, finding the Tiger line impregnable, punted to mid-field. Morgan returned the punt for 40 yards a minute later. Denver retaliated by punting to the college 30-yard line, Mack running back the ball 15 yards. Lennox made 12 yards through Denver's right guard. Morris gained 7 more through the same hole. Morgan then punted 35 yards, and Cort, who was like a deer getting down the field, recovered the ball as it bounced in the air. Mack electrified the crowd by skirting the right end for 30 yards. Lennox bucked through right guard for [illegible] more, and the ball was brought to Denver's 20 yard line. A penalty of 15 yards for holding was suffered by the Tigers, who tried to make up the difference on a forward pass, which failed.

A few minutes later the Tigers received the ball on their own 15-yard line. Morgan punted to D. U.'s 20 yard line. Attempts to gain against the college were futile, and D. U. punted to Fisher, who carried the ball back 12 yards. Morris bucked 25 yards through Denver's right guard. Lennox added 1 and Morris 8 through the same opening. The ball was on Denver's 25 yard line, and a fake goal from placement was turned into a forward pass, but the strategy failed. This is the same play which won the game for Yale in its battle with Harvard last Saturday. Denver immediately punted out of danger, Hatfield catching the falling ball, and dashing down the field for 35 yards. A goal was attempted from the 40-yard line, but fell short.

A kick-out from the 25-yard line put the ball in mid-field, and in a succession of whirlwind bucks and end runs by Morris, Lennox, Mack and Hatfield, the ball was shoved down the field for a touchdown. Morgan kicked an easy goal. Score Denver 5; Tigers 6. It took the college team 17 minutes to accomplish this feat and there seemed to be, and there was, plenty of time to make another score but the college lost many opportunities that were presented.

Morgan kicked off for 54 yards and Denver brought the ball back 20 yards. After Andrew blocked Denver's punt by backing into the kick, the college secured the ball on the visitors' 14-yard line. Here was the first opportunity to score, but the Tigers were unequal to the occasion. The first buck by Morris netted 6 yards. His next trial fizzled out, as he dropped the ball, and was downed before he could rise. It was now third down, with the goal to make. A hurried consultation among the orange and black players resulted in the selection of a goal from placement play. The psychological moment had arrived, and all eyes were strained to see the result. Morgan booted the ball, but it went six feet wide of the goal, and the situation was somewhat relieved.

The ball was put in play in the usual way, and after several exchanges of punts, Mack came to the front with a spectacular 40-yard run on a forward pass. The ball was now on Denver's 10-yard line, and once more a chance to score was presented. Try as they might, the local team could make no impression on the opposing line, and on the third down Mack was called for an end run, but failed to respond, as the best he could do was to carry the ball across to the other side line, where he was downed, Denver securing the pigskin. Denver punted out of danger, and the college resorted to the forward pass to advance the ball, but failed, Denver getting the spheroid. As Denver punted to the Tigers' 35-yard line time was called and the game was over.

Can You Use Food When You Get It?

Thousands of Stomachs Starving Where Mouths Are Well Fed. Costs Nothing to Relieve This Condition.

Eating is fast becoming too much a part of the daily routine, if not a mere tickling of the appetite—a thing to be gotten out of the way as quickly as possible. Little thought is given to "what kind of food," its effect upon the system, and whether it will be of use in building up the tissues of the body.

Your stomach will revolt, if it is not already doing so. It must shut up for repairs. What of the dizziness, and sometimes pain, which stop you after a hurried lunch? What of the general distress after a heavy dinner, a feeling of pressure against the heart which calls a halt and makes the breathing difficult? Is it common for you to be oppressed with belching and sour eructations? Are you constipated and then do you laughingly toss a dime to the druggist for his most palatable relief? Beware of temporary cures that are but palliatives. Many antidotes for the common ills which our flesh is heir to seem at first to relieve, but in reality, if not injecting poison into the system, lay the foundation for a deeper-seated and more far-reaching disorder.

Three-fourths of all diseases originate with a breaking-down of the digestion and nine-tenths of all digestive troubles originate with one or more of the symptoms named above.

Beware, then, of Indigestion and Dyspepsia. If you find yourself aching, listless, lacking in ambition when you should be on the alert,

Do not doctor the stomach.
It needs a rest from food and drugs.

Do not flush out the bowels.
It takes more than forcing food through the passageway to make blood and tissue and nerve.

Do not starve your stomach.
Food is a thing to be worked for all there is in it and your stomach will do the work if you will help it in Nature's way.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain nothing but the natural elements which enter into the healthy stomach and intestines to perform the function of digestion. Governmental tests and the investigations and sworn oaths of expert chemists attest this fact. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets go to the source of the trouble and positively restore the glands and fluids of the mucous membrane to their proper condition. They promptly relieve the distress of all troubles originating in the stomach or bowels (with the one exception of cancer).

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recommended by physicians and all reliable pharmacists. If you are a sufferer from indigestion or dyspepsia, try a fifty-cent package today. At all druggists', or if you prefer send us your name and address and we will gladly send you a trial package by mail free. F. A. Stuart Co., [illegible] Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

A Simple Pleasant and Perfect Cure for Catarrh

Have You Catarrh, Asthma or Hay Fever?
Are you Subject to Cold in the Head?

Catarrh begins with an inflammation of the lining (the mucous membrane) of the nasal passages, forming an offensive and corrosive virus. This virus is a poison which can be counteracted. But if it is permitted to run, the inflammation becomes a deep-seated (sometimes a running) sore, which sloughs away the lining of the nasal passages, poisoning the blood, eating into the cartilage and the bone, dropping down into the throat and bronchial tubes, carrying with it all the while the seeds of disease, which develop into Bronchitis, Laryngitis and Consumption. In the meantime it spreads through the passages of the head, causing deafness and [illegible]

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1906.

ALWAYS A MARPLOT.

THE Denver News is not satisfied with the prospect of a new postoffice in that city. It wants an enormous new federal building, to cost three millions. It seems that nothing in the way of public buildings can be proposed in Denver without a period of acrimonious bickering. It will be a wonder if the proposed auditorium is built at all, and if it is it will be only because Mayor Speer will see to it that the work is done—he doesn't care much what the papers say of him; just goes ahead and does things.

But there is the public library project. A committee of cultured and public-spirited citizens was appointed to take charge of the matter; they worked over it for years; they examined all the possibilities; the money was raised; plans were prepared and gone over carefully; thorough investigation was made into the cost of material; a building was provided for which would have been a great and lasting ornament to the city as well as a home for its books. Suddenly the whole thing went up in the air. The newspapers pitched into the committee, primarily because they had ignored the stonecutters of Colorado by providing for the use of a stone which could be cut at the quarry in Indiana much cheaper than it could be cut here. Then they were blamed for getting stone outside of Colorado anyhow. They were censured for "wasting" money on Corinthian columns, when a plain building—like the Denver Dry Goods Company's, for instance—would hold the books equally well. Every day some new attack appeared; and finally, after standing it as long as possible, the majority of the committee resigned, and the work was all to do over again.

Now they have a chance to get a new and modern postoffice. Mr. Bonynge, with the help of his colleagues in the House and Senator Warren of Wyoming, secured at the last session of Congress an appropriation of half a million for a site, and the proper official of the department has just been to Denver, looking at sites proposed. The modern plan is to have the postoffice by itself. From the nature of the business done in it, the postoffice should be a low building with plenty of floor space, and a big light-well in the middle.

The present postoffice in Denver is no perfect an example as we know of just what a postoffice ought not to be. The Government plan is to leave the present building—with a considerable extension for which there is room on the lot—for the federal offices and court rooms, and have the postoffice by itself. At present the federal offices are scattered all over town. Now, instead of falling in with this sensible plan, and getting a new postoffice within a short time, the News prepares to make a campaign that will perhaps delay the building of any postoffice at all, in favor of a project which is totally impracticable. It isn't any of our funeral, but we are sorry for the people of Denver.

A CASE OF THE LAW'S DELAY.

WHEN Shakespeare made Hamlet mention "the law's delay" as one of the crowning abominations, even his prophetic vision probably did not see with what force his words would apply to conditions three centuries hence. We are not informed as to the extent of the evil caused by the law's delays in England in Shakespeare's time, but it must have been pretty bad or the master dramatist would not have put the words in Hamlet's mouth. But if Shakespeare could return to earth today and see some of the tangles caused in this country by legal procrastination he would realize that the words were prophetic of the future as well as applicable to his own time.

Specific instances are numerous, but the case of Albert T. Patrick, of New York, is especially timely. About five years ago Patrick was arrested for complicity in the murder of William M. Rice, an aged Texas millionaire. There was always an element of doubt as to Patrick's guilt, but he was tried, convicted, and sentenced to death. Then began a long, and apparently interminable series of appeals, motions for new trials, and recourse to every other means of evading the penalty or of delaying its execution. Patrick spent four years and seven months in prison under sentence of death, in the very shadow of the electric chair. During this time he was present when seventeen other doomed felons were led from their cells and marched along the narrow corridor which separated the condemned cell block from the execution chamber, but his courage never wavered. He fought for life with a dogged determination and a degree of resourcefulness that surprised his closest friends. Now he has won. Governor Higgins has agreed to commute his sentence to life imprisonment, and though Patrick will pay a penalty for his crime, he has at least saved his own life.

We do not purpose to discuss the question of guilt. It has successively engaged the careful attention of two Governors of New York, and of the higher courts of that state, and finally of the Supreme Court of the United States. The point with which we are now concerned is whether the case could not have been finally determined long ago. Is it sane to try to keep a man in prison for five years under sentence of death while all the time his fate hangs in the balance in some court or some Governor's office? Patrick is either guilty of complicity in the murder of Rice or he is not guilty; he should either be hanged or he should not be [illegible] It ought not to [illegible] years [illegible] these two questions. Little, if any, new evidence has been introduced since the first trial, but the case has dragged along simply because the condemned man, who is himself a lawyer and has the services of other shrewd lawyers, is a fighter of the kind that never give up.

Patrick's fate ought to have been definitely determined at least four years ago. That it was not is a disgrace to the American courts. If this were an isolated case perhaps it would not merit the attention directed toward it, but unfortunately such cases are quite common though few, if any, others have been carried to so unreasonable an extreme. It emphasizes, as forcibly as anything could, the necessity for the reform of criminal practice so strongly recommended by such jurists as Mr. Justice Brewer and Judge Taft.

One thing to be thankful for after Thanksgiving is that there are not so many accidents to report as after the Fourth of July.

Lilian Whiting has discovered that Denver ought to be the capital of the United States. Miss Whiting is evidently speaking from a purely feminine point of view; how about Chamberlain's? Denver is all right in its way, but where can you get oysters, clams, fish, and terrapin as you can in Washington? Nay, nay, Lilian; you may get woman suffrage in the District of Columbia if you want to, but so long as mere man is mostly in charge of the Government, and is constituted inside the way he is now, there is no use talking about moving the capital of the United States.

Press Opinions

WOOD PULP.

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

A recent cable dispatch announced the discovery by a European chemist of a process for the production of paper of excellent quality from rushes. Of course, the importance of such an announcement is dependent wholly upon its accuracy and upon the realization of the expectations of the inventor, which the world has learned must not be taken for granted. Yet in the light of the figures given by a recent bulletin of the forest service of the United States department of agriculture, which show that the estimated average length of supply of the timber which now goes into wood pulp mills of the country is only twenty-one years, the hope that the rush process may be developed into a commercial possibility becomes urgent.

✣ ✣

LABOR WANTS ITS DIVIDEND.

From the Washington Herald.

On the heels of the announcement by several railroad companies of big dividends comes a movement by railway employes to secure higher wages and shorter hours. The railroads are enjoying a season of unexampled prosperity, their business is so great that most of them are unable to handle it, and notwithstanding reductions in both passenger and freight rates, their revenues, both net and gross, are constantly and rapidly increasing. In the handling of this enormous business, railway employes have had an important share. They maintain that their work has become more arduous and exacting on account of the growth of railway traffic. For these reasons railway employes throughout the country think they are fairly entitled to share in the increased prosperity of the roads.

The transportation interests so vitally affect all classes of the community that every movement of railway employes tending toward serious differences with their superiors arouses apprehension of a strike, the crippling of traffic and the demoralization of commerce. We are pleased to see that the present movement portends no such eventualities. So far as appears now, the demands made by the employes are moderate, and the attitude of railway managers conciliatory. There is excellent promise that both sides will get together, and that they will eventually reach satisfactory agreement. It would be extremely unfortunate if the outcome should be otherwise.

SHALL THE BODY BE SAVED, OR THE SOUL?

From the Kansas City Times.

Even those persons who repose no great confidence in the progress of medical science may well feel a bit ashamed of themselves when they learn of the wonderful discovery regarding consumption that has been disclosed at the American international congress on tuberculosis now in session in New York. Though doctors may still find it necessary to sometimes kill people to discover what really ails them, it little behooves anyone to decry a profession which numbers among its members such a brilliant man as Dr. F. E. Daniel, one of the most prominent physicians of Austin, Tex. He may not have been of the immortals yesterday, but today he has gotten his name in the newspapers throughout the world solely by telling his associates what causes the spread of consumption. Dr. Daniel says it's nothing more or less than the churches. These places of worship, he claims, are unsanitary. Waxing eloquent, he calls them "Black holes of Calcutta."

Now, what are the people going to do about it? If they keep away from church they are liable to die unshriven. If they go to church they take the risk of contracting tuberculosis. It is well enough to sound every possible warning against the "white plague," but with all due respect to Dr. Daniel, would it not be safer to hazard our lives in the performance of our religious duty than to save them by turning our backs on the faith and the "promises"? "Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul," is the advice of the Great Book, to which we should all pay careful heed.

"A STRANGER IN A STRANGE LAND."

To the Editor of The Gazette:

In answer to the letter signed "Philanthropist," I would state just this: I am only one of the unfortunate creatures who has had to strain every effort to reach Colorado Springs that my life might be spared. The fact of that poor woman who died of starvation is a disgrace to the city. "Philanthropist" states that he or she stood with some others watching their more unfortunate brothers and sisters go and come to and from the relief department. They think it a good idea to add coarse food to the department. Isn't that just like what the rich would do? No doubt those who are compelled to accept relief have been more accustomed to "The goods the gods provide" than the author of said letter.

Is there one of the rich here who would willingly stop and take in the carriage or auto in which they are driving some girl or boy, man or woman, for an hour's pleasure in the country air? Methinks I see their hands go up horrified at the mere suggestion. Is there any place in this city for those in the middle walk of life, or must one necessarily resort to the ditches, sink as low as can be imagined; then, whoever may be the fortunate one to find them and lift them up, will receive all the publicity desired.

One thing always comforts me—when it comes our time to pass into the "great beyond" our Savior won't discriminate, but there at last we are on equal footing with our wealthier brothers and sisters.

The early fall of snow and its continuation at short intervals reminds us of the winter about ten years ago. Snow commenced to fall about Thanksgiving time and covered the ground until in March. We hope it will be warm snow as our coal bill looks bad, even now.

PROWERS COUNTY CRIMINALS.

From the Lamar Sparks.

It is greatly to the credit of Prowers county that notwithstanding the large increase in population the criminal docket of the district court is very little larger than it was six years ago. No other county in the state has a permanent population more law abiding than our own, practically all the criminal business of the courts being furnished by transient residents.

DEPARTMENT OF MINING.

From the Ouray Herald.

The effort upon the part of the Mining congress to bring about the creation of a department of mining at the coming session of congress certainly seems timely and in accord with the demands of the great industry. Commerce and labor have their departments in the cabinet of the president of the United States as has the great agricultural industry and all are pleased that all these departments have been created for taking care of these activities. The mining industry has reached such vast proportions in this country as to need the co-operation of the government with the people, and the need should be cared for.

MIXING ORES.

From the Telluride Journal.

It is said an effort will be made at the legislative session this winter requiring smelters and mills to keep each lot and parcel of ore separate and intact until final settlement is made with the owner of the ore. This is a foolish measure that will work a distinct hardship on the ore seller, and result in a reduced price, or rather an added expense, in handling and treatment of his ore. It is absolutely necessary to mix ores of different grades and constituents, before they can be successfully treated. If the seller wants a check on the smelter let him sample his ore at an independent sampling works. Do not permit such a fool law to get on the statute books to further handicap the mining industry.

SIMPLICITY SCRAP AT THE JEFFERSONIAN

From the Tulsa (I. T.) World.

An altercation occurred between a councilman, who is designated as "the terror of the First," and an ex-member of that body, the word battle being refereed by the mayor, labeled "the hero." It occurred at a meeting of the Jefferson Club. Just as "the terror" had reached a brilliant climax he was greeted by the exclamation "Rats!" from the ex-member. With an eloquence surpassing his former efforts, "the terror" paid his respects to the offender. It was then that eloquence was thrown aside and the lie was passed in the plain, unvarnished tongue. As the two men rushed toward each other expounding Jeffersonian doctrine, the mayor rushed between, requesting them not to strike him. Order was restored.

EDITORIAL TRIBULATIONS.

From the Canby (Wash.) Tribune.

The editor of this old rag of freedom is pursued by divers ill omens of all kinds and conditions. Here is a fair sample: One night this week some one broke into the postoffice store and stole a box of cigars. They happened to be the kind we had been smoking and Postmaster Deyoe at once stated that he believed we were the guilty party. At Oregon City Wednesday we bought a ticket to Canby and handed the agent a half dollar, and he forthwith slammed it on the counter several times to see if it wasn't counterfeit. When we reached home that evening and walked down the street a good lady stuck her head out the window and exclaimed: "There goes that new Methodist preacher." And the Lord only knows what will come next.

Mental Dyspepsia

Action of the Mind on the Digestion of Food.

From the New York World.

WHILE talking with a prominent physician, a few days ago, the latter advanced the theory that it is not so much the food we eat that hurts us as the way we eat it. As this was a matter in which I was particularly interested I questioned him somewhat closely, and here is the lesson that he taught me.

There are lots of people in the world who are suffering from stomach ailments [illegible] actually have nothing the matter with them if they could only be made to think so. In reality, they are suffering from mental dyspepsia, a disease that anybody can contract if he once makes up his mind to be that particular kind of a fool.

To get this disease firmly settled upon him it is only necessary that a man should take all his troubles and indispositions to the table with him. If he sits down to eat while in a sour temper the disgruntled mental condition that is so plainly indicated upon his features exercises its effect upon his food. Although the bread and meat that he has eaten may have been of the best quality procurable, his sour temper sours it so that it is finally nothing better than contaminated food that gets into his blood and his stomach.

As anger is admitted to be a thought-poison, the man who takes his angry and spiteful thoughts to the table with the morning paper usually succeeds in poisoning everything he eats. To take one's worries or the fretful thoughts to his meals is just as serious a mistake, for they, too, are poisonous. Business cares, family discords, personal grievances should all be banished at the door of the dining room for if it is true that these thought elements have just as much effect upon the other nerve forces of our bodies there is not one of us who can afford to consume such deleterious elements along with our rolls and coffee or at any other meal during the day.

Action of Nerves on Digestion.

According to this physician's theory, the nerves play a more important part in the actions of the stomach and our other digestive apparatus than many of us have heretofore imagined. Thus, he claims, if we eat with the idea constantly before us that we are in danger of eating too much, or that the foods we are eating are liable to hurt us, we are taking the one course that is most certain to bring about the very results that we fear. In other words, the anxious thoughts that have worried us during the process of eating will continue to assert their evil influence during the later process of digestion.

How often do we hear people say: "I am going to eat this, but I know it will hurt me," and in nine cases out of ten it does.

We hear others say: "My stomach is so weak that there is scarcely anything that I can eat!" The statement is literally true, but the thing they do not realize is this—that it is nothing more than these same anxious thoughts that are poisoning their food and making it do them this harm instead of good.

If you want your food to disagree with you just be honestly and consistently afraid that it is going to do so, and you will find that you will not be disappointed.

On the other hand—and fortunately for all of us—this is a law that works both ways. As the result, we who would be healthy have but to make up our minds to eat properly in order to enjoy all the advantages that one may derive from following these new principles in hygiene.

Instead of going to the table with a sort of resigned air, therefore, as though we were certain that nothing was going to suit us—as though we knew that the time spent in eating would be time spent disagreeably—we should strive to make the hours of eating the happiest moments of our lives. As these are often the only hours when the family group is together, it ought not to be difficult to make them memorable for their merriment. All that is necessary is that the various members of the family should make up their minds not to bring their troubles to the table, but in place of the anxiety, the worriment, and other poisonous elements, to bring the jolly stories, the chatty gossip and the cheerful thoughts that will help so much to assure good nature, and its natural result, good digestion, from one end of the table to the other.

This is the theory as it was explained to me. Personal experiment only can prove whether it is true or false, but it seems to me as though the experiment was one that was worth trying.

HOW GERMANY MADE HER MERCHANT MARINE

From the Review of Reviews.

Some interesting data as to the methods by which Germany has so marvelously developed her merchant marine are given in an article by Francis Delaisi, first appearing in the Européen (Paris) and largely reproduced in the Italia Moderna (Turin-Rome). From a tonnage of 982,000 in 1870 the German fleet has mounted to 1,181,525 in 1880, 1,433,413 in 1890, and 2,093,033 in 1901—that is, in thirty years, an increase of 111 per cent. The increase is wholly in steam vessels, as sailing vessels have decreased in tonnage 16 per cent in the last decade, and their in and out tonnage in German ports has notably fallen off. The steam tonnage in 1901 was 1,506,054, or an increase of 108 per cent in ten years. Hamburg's fleet now surpasses that of all France. This port, which in 1850 was connected with America by a single line with a single vessel, is now served by 118 lines, of which 71 are German. Every international port in the world is reached by German steamers, and Germany runs England a close second for maritime position. No other country can show in its ports more ships flying its own colors than those with the English flag. Moreover, the German ships are largely built at home. In 1895, ships of only 24,840 tons were built in German yards, while in 1901 the figures reached 101,-856, and while ships of 139,038 tonnage were bought of England, German yards sold 40,975 tons to other nations. In 1876, the North German Lloyd bought 74 per cent of its ships in England, and now this is the percentage of home construction. Of ships of more than 10,000 tons, England has 26, Germany 24, the United States six, and France two.

Government Subsidies.

The German government encourages home construction, but not by direct subsidies. It furnishes model yards, docks and appliances, and acts as intermediary between constructors and steel-makers, offering reduced railroad rates to the latter if they give discounts to the former. This avoids the evil existing in France, where constructors buy materials, or, rather, ships, in "knock-down" condition, in England, put them together in French yards, and collect the government subsidy. Likewise, Germany refuses to pay the subsidies for mileage that French ships get for sailing from port to port loaded with ballast. The Hamburg line receives no subvention, and the North German Lloyd none for most of its lines. The Hamburg line receives $44 per league for its postal service, which is the fastest service, an average of 166 hours, while French lines take 204 hours for a shorter distance.

How German Trade Is Helped.

The German government has the right to take over merchant vessels in time of war, without, however, making this a pretext for subsidies. These are granted only where German bottoms are trying to open up new markets for trade. When it is necessary to anchor for hours in an open port to take on a few tons of freight—to spend 1,000 marks to gain 50—the government aids the steamship lines. Thus, the state pays the Lloyd company 7,000,000 marks ($1,750,000) for its lines to Australia and the far east, the German East Africa line 1,125,000 marks ($281,-250), and a considerable sum to the Levant line. However, another way is found to favor these stimulants of commerce. It is by granting low railroad freight rates on export goods to new markets—less than half English rates for the same distances on iron, a third on cotton, and a sixth on manufactured woolens. When trade is firmly established in these markets, the rates are raised to normal. Similarly, the ocean freights are lowered to new markets, and for east Africa England thought to take advantage of these rates, and shipped her goods via Germany. The result was that the British India company, which touched at Zanzibar, lost $150,000 in one year, and ceased the service, and the natives, seeing only German ships, German sailors and German brokers, gave their chief trade to Germany. The importation of German products climbed from 300,900 pounds ($1,504,500) in 1895 to 995,160 pounds ($4,-975,800) in 1898, while English imports, after slowly increasing from 105,670 pounds ($528,350) to 114,217 pounds ($571,085), fell off to 107,205 pounds ($536,025).

The German government, through the Imperial bank, has helped to make the Hamburg and the North German Lloyd the strongest steamship companies on earth, the Cunard coming third. The government sees to it that there is constant accord between the companies, and this is so firm that they have established a common "war fund" for use in case of too strenuous foreign competition. Moreover, the German government, contrary to French practice, makes service in the merchant marine so honorable that naval officers do not feel degraded on transferring to it. German merchant officers are assured of careers and regular promotions, and their rank in the naval reserve is raised correspondingly as they advance in the merchant service.

THE UNENDING QUEST.

Light and dark men, fat men and lean;
Good men and bad men, soiled men and clean;
Short men and tall men, strong men and weak,
And there's one thing that all men always will seek.

Sad men and glad men, brown men and white;
Rich men and poor men, dull men and bright;
Old men and young men; day after day
Each man among men searches away,

Blindly accepting scheme after scheme,
Still men are swindled, still they will dream:
Loving or loathing, one thing they crave—
"Something for nothing"—which no man e'er gave.

THE VISITATION.

There was quiet over Colon,
There was peace in Panama,
(Where the role of "Sleeping Beauty"
Is performed with great eclat;)
All the dredges were reposing
With their noses in the dirt,
Every engineer was dozing
In his trousers and his shirt,
And the darky with the shovel
Sweetly slumbered in the mud
With his faithful mule beside him,
Gently chewing of its cud,
Poultney Bigelow was forgotten,
Brother Taft was far away,
All the Isthmus took its pleasure
In a dreamy holiday—
When along the throbbing wire
The electric message ran:
"He is coming. He is coming.
Better hustle while you can!"
Every dredge in sudden hunger
Took a double chew of soil;
Every engineer grew vocal
With the blasphemies of toil;
Every darky swung the shovel
Just as fast as he could pitch;
Every mule developed interest
In the progress of the ditch;
Every brush and broom in Colon
Set to work to clean the place;
Every mammy in Culebra
Scrubbed her pickaninny's face,
And the gravel fell in showers,
And the mud in yellow rain,
Till the atmosphere resembled
A political campaign;
Every industry and business
Took a mighty sudden spurt,
For when Teddy comes a-calling
Then it's best to shovel dirt.

DINNER AT Y. M. C. A.

HEARTY GREETING TO THOSE AWAY FROM HOME.

Seven Foreign Countries and Twenty-two States Represented—Rev. Worley's Lecture Follows.

Representatives of 7 foreign countries and 22 states attended the Colorado Springs Young Men's Christian association's annual Thanksgiving dinner for young men who are away from home, at the Y. M. C. A. building last night at 6 o'clock. The dinner was without doubt the most successful ever given by the association, and a remarkable feature was the number of visitors from the different states of the United States and from foreign countries.

President Clarence P. Dodge, of the Y. M. C. A., welcomed the young men who partook of the association's bounteous spread, greeting them in the name of the Y. M. C. A., and urging them not to make this their last visit to Colorado Springs, and its Young Men's Christian association. The social committee had prepared cards of introduction on which was written, "I am — who are you?" The person filling out the greatest number of the cards, and thus introducing himself to the greatest number of guests, was awarded a unique prize, while the one filling out the smallest number, was given one much less attractive. The presentation of the prizes caused much merriment. Attention was turned to the turkey and other good things which had been provided by the association in goodly quantities, and the dinner concluded with prayer by the Rev. George L. Patterson.

The Rev. Mr. Worley gave an illustrated lecture on "A Trip Around the World in Eighty Minutes," following the report. Mr. Worley's lecture was highly appreciated by his hearers and the views excellent.

Before the conclusion of the affair, a vote of thanks was tendered Professor and Mrs. Spangenberg, who furnished music during the evening.

SAD THANKSGIVING FOR KOUPA

Mail Carrier Badly Injured by Brick Thrown by West Side Hoodlum.

Knocked senseless by a brick hurled by a big boy, one of a gang of hoodlums, F. T. Koupa, a mail carrier on route No. 2, on the west side, is lying at his home, 15 Telluride avenue, slowly recovering from the effects of the blow. The attack, which is the climax of a series of persistent insults, was made yesterday morning just after the carrier had started on his rounds near the east line of Colorado City. For some time past he had been the object of rude conduct and jibing remarks from the boys of the neighborhood, and when he appeared yesterday it was nothing new for him to have to face, abuse though he expected nothing so serious as bodily harm.

More than the usual degree of ruffianism, however, was evidently afoot, for on his appearance there was a general suggestion that he be mobbed. Koupa paid little attention to the threats, however, until he again met the crowd in the alley west of Washington avenue in the 1200 block, where they renewed their threats and insulting language. Foreseeing that he was in actual danger of an assault, the man was about to warn the boys against committing such an unwarranted outrage, when a big fellow standing beside a bicycle hurled a half brick, which landed on the right side of Koupa's forehead, inflicting a terrible wound. The man dropped to the ground insensible, and knew nothing more until he was brought to under the doctor's care in the residence of C. L. Smith, 1202 Washington avenue, where he had been carried by the neighbors.

In the meantime the boys made their escape, but the description of the hoodlum who threw the brick has been secured by the police from Mr. Smith, who was a witness of the affair. Officer Railsback, of the police force removed the man in the ambulance to the office of Dr. Mark Smith, where his wound was dressed, after which he was taken to his home, where he is being nursed by his wife, to whom he was married only a short time ago.

The arrest of a youth 17 years old was made last night by Detective Rowan, but the boy being a minor, has not been placed in custody, and Postmaster Strachan it is said, has requested that he be turned over to the federal courts for trial. His name has not been made known. As the offense was committed while the man was on duty and in uniform, the punishment is likely to be severe. The crime is punishable by not less than one year in the penitentiary in the case of an adult.

NOBLE WORK OF ARMY

SALVATIONISTS PROVIDE GOOD CHEER FOR NEEDY.

Made Thanksgiving Day a Bright One for the Unfortunate—Happy Children at Mission.

The good Samaritan was abroad in the city yesterday in the form of a Salvation Army man with a team and delivery wagon, and as a result more than 80 families, who otherwise might have been without the means of enjoying the day, were provided with an abundance of good things for the table sufficient to last the ordinary family for several days. That is to say, that on a conservative estimate, at least 400 men, women, and children were made to feel that the spirit of Christian generosity was abroad in the city, and that nobody should want whose needs were known to the good people of Colorado Springs.

Most of the substantial things provided came from the city schools and from private individuals, who gave to the Army as the best means of distribution, but a portion was contributed from the funds of the Army itself, whose members worked untiringly in looking after the details of the affair. As each of the packages delivered weighed close to 100 pounds, the Good Samaritan, with his wagon, had no child's play on his hands. Besides the enormous quantities of food given away, the officers of the Army, under the direction of Ensign Edgell and Captain Kunkel, distributed thousands of articles of clothing which had been contributed from the homes of this city, and which will keep many a woman and child from suffering during the cold weather of the coming winter.

Everybody Cared For.

A feature of the work was the care taken in handling the supplies so that they reached the most deserving among the city poor and needy, and, as a consequence nothing was wasted or misapplied. The army officers had secured beforehand a list of the needy ones, with their addresses, and in every instance a careful investigation was made and the number and condition of the members of the family were reported. While all were generously provided, for the most needy were naturally considered first and in cases of sickness, medical attention and medicines were also provided.

A Thanksgiving demonstration at the Army headquarters last night formed an appropriate ending to the day, and a most enjoyable program of songs and recitations was rendered by the children. The hall was crowded to the doors and a special program of music was given by the members of the organization. Ensign Edgell stated last night that the Army will put forward its best efforts in the near future to make Santa Claus eclipse the work even of the Good Samaritan.

Happy Children at Mission.

A dinner that would have satisfied the most exacting was given at the People's Mission at noon yesterday, when 200 children were treated to the finest things in the way of edibles that the markets of Colorado Springs could produce. Pastor Elliott presided and previous to the feast conducted a song service in which all present engaged with a heartiness that showed their appreciation of the good time in store and the gratitude for kindnesses received, while those who served were quite as delighted as the recipients of the feast.

Prior to the dinner, Rev. Mr. Cage conducted Thanksgiving services, in which all joined. Assistants under the direction of Frank Howe, who had charge of the arrangements, went to work with a will, and saw to it that everyone of the little folks present had the best of everything, and splendid service too. They certainly did justice to the viands, and those who managed the feast and waited on the tables had the satisfaction of knowing that their efforts had been appreciated.

MAGNOLIA TO HAVE NEW MILL

Taylor Company Will Use Cyanide Process to Treat Its Own Ore. Wano Mill Completed.

BOULDER, Colo., Nov. 29.—Ground is being broken this week for a new 20-ton cyanide mill for the Taylor Mining and Milling company, which is operating at Magnolia. Hendrie & Bolthoff, of Denver, have the contract for construction and the mill is to be completed inside of four months. The mill is to be built on a plan similar to that of the Cash mill, which has made such a signal success in the application of the cyanide method to the treatment of Boulder county ores, the application of the cyanide solution being preceded by an oxidizing roast.

The mill will treat the ore of the Taylor company, but will do custom treatment as well and will greatly stimulate work of the small operators near this camp.

A few miles south of Magnolia, on South Boulder, the big 500-ton cyanide mill which State Geologist Langridge is building for an English syndicate, is fast approaching completion, and unless something now unforseen transpires will commence treating ore within the next thirty days. Many thousand tons of ore have been broken from the great dyke containing millions of tons already mined, and in this project, where profits per ton will be counted in cents, is an enterprise that will mark a new era in the treatment of the low-grade ores of Boulder county.

The Wano 50-ton cyanide mill, the property of the Monarch company at Jamestown, is practically completed and is only awaiting the arrival of the Merton roaster from San Francisco to commence operations. President Waltemeyer expects the furnace within the next ten days and hopes to have the mill in operation by the 25th of next month. A test-treatment of 150 tons of ore from the property of this company was sent to the Dorcas mill at Florence and gave values better than $33 per ton, with a saving of above 95 per cent of the assay values.

GOOD ORE ON THE CHRISTMAS

Becker and Travell Are Shipping Two-Ounce Rock.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 29.—Becker and Travell, operating on the Christmas claim, on Bull hill, adjoining the Golden Cycle, are getting out a car of ore every other day. This ore will give average returns of two ounces in gold to the ton. The ore was really uncovered by the Golden Cycle company, which mined the ore in its ground up to the Christmas line. Becker and Travell have an underground electric hoist on the 700-foot level and are making a nice profit every month.

NO ONE CALLS ON GILLETTE

Prisoner Allowed no Visitors—Spends Cheerless Thanksgiving.

HERKIMER, N. Y., Nov. 29.—Chester E. Gillette, the young man now on trial here charged with the murder of Grace Brown, spent a lonely Thanksgiving day in his cell in the county jail. He received no visitors, his keepers having been given strict orders to permit no one to go to his cell today.

But even in his loneliness, Gillette welcomed the respite from the trying ordeal which began in earnest yesterday, when he went on the witness stand to tell his story of that tragic day at Big Moose Lake. For nearly seven hours he withstood a volley of questions, at first friendly when his counsel had him in hand, and later antagonistic when the district attorney faced him for a long cross examination. Gillette was tired, worn and very pale when the adjournment was taken last night and even then the severest part of the questioning remained. The holiday will give the prisoner an opportunity to regain his composure, and to fortify himself for the struggle which will come when the cross examination is resumed tomorrow.

CRIPPLE CREEK SAFE

EASTERN CAPITAL FAVORS BIG COLORADO CAMP.

Deep Drainage Tunnel Will Pour Thousands of Dollars Into District—Future Looks Bright.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 29.—Frank A. Pettingell, president or in control of five Cripple Creek district properties, has arrived in this city for the purpose of leasing the many holdings under his charge. The properties in question are the Ben Hur, Mobile, Republic and Santa Rosa. In order to get the properties operated under the leasing system by responsible parties, Mr. Pettingell is offering leases [illegible] though Mr. Pettingell has been in the district less than twenty-four hours, he has already had six applications for different properties and blocks.

Mr. Pettingell is now a member of the New York Stock exchange, and declares that easterners are on the verge of investing in a stable and well-known camp, and that Cripple Creek has the call over any others, although Nevada is in the swim at present. He predicts that soon big capital and those wanting dividends and a safe mining investment will come to Cripple Creek.

Speaking of the great enthusiasm throughout the country as regards the mining industry, Mr. Pettingell declared that if the deep drainage tunnel was assured, there would be no end to the amount of eastern capital that would be invested here. He believed that the east should be thoroughly informed regarding this big undertaking, which will insure additional longevity to the camp for one or two score years.

BIG STRIKE IN FISHERMAN

Magnificent Discovery Made in Montezuma Property—Shoot Is Four Feet Wide.

BRECKENRIDGE, Colo., Nov. 29.—A new strike of from three to four feet of zinc and lead ore has been made in the Fisherman lode, near Montezuma, by the Lenawee Reduction and Tunnel company, which has a lease and bond on the property. The strike was made in the main tunnel at about 800 feet from the mouth. Those who have seen the ore state that it will make a shipping grade carrying over 30 per cent in zinc. The Fisherman is about half a mile up hill from the new concentration mill of the Lenawee company. Colonel J. H. Myres is the manager of the Lenawee company. He is very well pleased with the way the Fisherman property is showing up.

There is quite an unusual amount of work going on now in the vicinity of Montezuma, and times are better there than they have been for several years.

In Frisco District.

At Frisco the resumption of the Mary Verna group, with the promise of soon starting operation on the North American—both properties are to be steadily developed through their long tunnels during the winter—is good news. Both properties were organized by J. E. Parker of the Southwestern Development company of Memphis, Tenn., and the stock is held largely by residents of Georgia and adjacent states. The tunnels are being driven for the purpose of developing the veins of a large number of lode mining claims that are owned by the companies, which last year completed a $25,000 air compressor plant that supplies the power for driving the machine drills and the lighting plant.

Superintendent Ed Huter of the Square Deal Mining and Milling company states that the big crosscut tunnel of that property, now in over 250 feet, has cut a small vein at 225 feet. The rock through which the tunnel is advancing is said to show promising indications of striking a contact vein before going much further. This tunnel is being driven into Chief mountain to develop the veins contained in the large acreage owned by the Square Deal company; it is backed by Illinois capital. Frank E. Wire of Libertyville, Ill., is the general manager of the property.

At Breckenridge.

The big Reliance Gold Dredging company will run as long as the weather permits. It is a novelty to see gold-bearing sands being raised or scooped from the bedrock and washed while the thermometer registers several degrees below zero. The ground in the section where the dredge is working in French gulch is so rich that it is common report that the boat is clearing $1,000 per day. French gulch is one of the old-time gulches that contained so-called "pound diggings"—from the rich deposits or pockets of which returns of twelve ounces Troy in gold were obtained daily per man employed in 1859-60. In the early days of placer mining in Summit county the miners worked the beds of the streams for four or five feet below the river level, where it was possible; the deeper portions of the streams, from eighteen to thirty feet below the surface, have remained virgin ground for the dredge-boat method of operation. Ben Stanley Revett, the pioneer builder of gold-dredging boats in Summit county, has been very successful in interesting capital in his dredging promotion. He is the manager of the Reliance Gold Dredging company.

THOMPSON GOES TO MEXICO.

Secretary Cripple Creek Mine Owners and Operators Ass'n. Resigns.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 29.—Lloyd H. Thompson, secretary of the Cripple Creek Mine Owners and Operators association, has tendered his resignation to the executive committee, to take effect at once. Mr. Thompson has been tendered and accepted a position as superintendent of the Sierra Plata Mining company, with large and rich holdings in Chihuahua, Mexico. The Sierra Plata company is a silver proposition, and one of the best in the Mexican government. Mr. Thompson hopes that he will be checked out in a few days, and he will then leave between December 1 and 5.

THE FARM STILL LEADS

AGRICULTURE MAKES PHENOMENAL PROGRESS.

Is First Among the Industries of America—Corn Is King of Cereals.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Corn is king, cotton holding second rank among the agricultural productions of the United States. The sugar beet industry has made a phenomenal growth in recent years, now occupying ninth place. These facts are stated in the annual report of Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture, just made public.

Secretary Wilson says the laws made by congress at its last session, to be executed by the department, have required and received special attention. The meat law is being enforced, and inspection is now made in over 1,000 houses. Rules have been prepared for the execution of the pure food law. Good has followed the operation of the law for the extermination of the cattle fever tick in some of the southern states. In dealing with the gipsy and brown-tail moths of New England, imported parasites have been successfully established. A beginning has been made in the method of determining the grading of grain, and the law providing for the humane treatment of livestock in transit is receiving careful attention.

The farm products of the year have a farm value of very nearly $6,800,000,000, nearly half a billion above the value of 1905, and exceeding by over $2,000,000,000 the figures for the last census.

Corn remains by far the most valuable crop, estimated at $1,100,000,000. Next comes the cotton crop, which, including seed, should be worth to the growers nearly $640,000,000. The value of hay, which is third in order, approaches $600,000,000. Wheat, the fourth crop, may be worth $450,000,000; oats, $300,000,000; potatoes, $150,000,000. Barley, with a value of $65,000,000, shows a gain of 21 per cent in production in the past seven years. The tobacco crop will be worth about $55,000,000.

Recognizing the necessity for more systematic efforts along the line of dry-land farming, during the past year important field and laboratory investigations have been arranged for, which, it is believed, will be of great value to those who have already settled or who contemplate settling in semiarid areas where irrigation is impracticable. The great plains area, lying between the 98th and 104th meridians and including approximately 330,000 square miles, is one of the most important districts where this work is being conducted.

A remarkable development is that of the sugar beet, now the ninth crop in value. The production in 1906 is placed at 345,000 long tons, valued at $34,000,000. Seven years ago the value of all kinds of sugar, syrup and molasses aggregates $75,000,000.

On the whole, crop values have been neither notably high nor low in comparison with recent years, but the high price level in the general average has raised the total crop value somewhat as compared with 1905 and the high preceding years. To reach a still higher point in this series of high annual values is an achievement worthy of attention.

In Colorado and Arizona sales of timber totaled more than 17,000,000 board feet for each state and in Utah and California more than 10,000,000. In Colorado and Utah these sales were mainly of fire-killed timber, largely used in mining. In Arizona large quantities of mature accessible timber permitted extensive cutting without injury to the forest. In other states cutting was comparatively insignificant in amount, save in Idaho, where nearly 8,000,000 feet were cut.

The farm still overshadows the mill, the factory and the workshop in providing exports, and with his surplus beyond the nation's need the farmer has loaded the fleets of oceans. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1906, this surplus has been exported to the value of $976,000,000, the largest amount ever reached by agricultural exports for this or any other country and exceeding the export value of 1901, previously the record year. Among chief exports cotton maintains a long lead, with a value of $400,000,000. The packing house products exported amounted to a value of $207,000,000.

For 1906, the agricultural exports exceeded similar imports by $453,000,000, while products of all other industries secured a balance in our favor of only $55,000,000. During the last seventeen years the exports of the farmer have exceeded the agricultural imports by $6,000,000,000, while all other producers find themselves at the end of the same period with a total on the debtor side amounting to $450,000,000.

If real estate, domestic animals, other live stock, implements and machinery are included, the farmer's capital has increased since the census valuation by probably $5,000,000,000, the present valuation being probably [illegible].

Cotton planters are now out of their former bondage to future maintenance, and in the middle west there has been a conversion of a million agricultural debtors, paying high rates of interest, into financially independent farmers, debt-free and offering their savings to the banks at as small a rate of interest as 2 per cent. Farmers are using their new capital to abolish the waste places of the land and along the main lines of improved production. Formerly there was an abundance of farm labor and a scarcity of farm capital. Now these conditions are reversed; labor is scarce and capital abundant.

GIVE UNCLE SAM STRENGTH.

Coal, Corn, Cotton and Copper Supplies Unequaled Elsewhere.

From the Wall Street Journal.

The four great economic wants of the world are fuel, food, clothing and light, and the four basic commodities required [illegible] copper, in each of which the United States holds a first rank.

Last year the coal output of the United States was 352,000,000 tons. The world's production was 912,000,000, or more than a third of the world's production in the United States. Next in order stands Great Britain, with 229,858,000 tons, and Germany ranks third, with 173,000,000 tons. The presence of this large measure of coal supply puts these three nations in the front rank of the world's industrial powers.

Corn, among our staple crops in the agricultural economy of the United States, is the mainstay of the country's animal food supply. As a food for human consumption it often served a pioneering purpose, before wheat became general as a bread food. But its importance lies rather in its being the basis of the animal food supply of the country.

Corn the Greatest Crop.

American agriculture without its corn crop would be in little better position than most other countries which lack the capacity to maintain a large supply of live stock economy, but it is to a large extent the free working capital of the American farm. It is the most universal American crop in its relation to animal production and maintenance. It is this crop that gives the United States the advantage in maintaining the meat food supply and thus the physical standard of living which counts for so much in international competition.

The third great factor in American trade prosperity is the cotton crop. No part of the world has anything like the natural monopoly which the southern portion of the United States enjoys in this fiber. The exports of cotton determine the balance of trade in favor of the United States almost wholly and alone. No other part of the world can grow cotton so economically nor expand the volume of production so readily as the southern states. Industrially as well as agriculturally and commercially the entire nation enjoys a peculiar handicap over other nations on account of its cotton production.

Country Strong in Copper.

The fourth great advantage which the United States have is in the supply of copper. As corn is the basis of the meat producing pre-eminence of the United States, and as cotton is the source of the clothing supply of the vast majority of people, so copper ranks first among those agencies which are necessary for the diffusion of light to the millions of people gathered in the progressive cities of the world.

Coal, corn, cotton and copper suggest the enormous wealth of resources with which this nation is endowed. Yet these should be looked upon not solely as material means for the enrichment of ourselves, but also as the means of service which is involved in the great task of international prosperity. All these things are not so much the subject of boasting as the instruments for the world-wide betterment of which the best endowed nations are the responsible trustees.

Burnett's Vanilla Is Pure Food. Always get Burnett's. Take no risks.

MORE ZEALOUS THAN WOMANLY

From the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

It was natural that the impression one received concerning the personality of the woman suffragists who created a rumpus recently in the British house of commons was to the effect that they were a coarse, Amazonian band of fanatics, eager for some form of martyrdom.

That they were prepared to sacrifice their comfort and incur the odium of arrest and imprisonment for their cause is still obvious, but if a statement by Malcolm Lincoln, London correspondent of the New York Commercial, is to be credited, their conduct was strangely contradictory to their station in society and their ordinary quality as women.

The correspondent says: "Eleven of the most refined, best educated and richest women in London have been confined in the city prison and have been arraigned in the police court. . . . Three of the prisoners are daughters of Richard Cobden—a name immortal in English history—only by chance did the sister of General French—one of the Boer war cavalry heroes—escape, though it is whispered the police were unwilling to arrest them. But Mrs. Montefiore is in jail, and this is very much as if Julia Ward Howe were locked up for advocating larger political functions for her sex."

The comparison of Mrs. Montefiore with Julia Ward Howe may be true so far as their relative social standing is concerned; but it is inconceivable that Mrs. Howe would indulge in such antics as these high born and undoubtedly sincere English suffragists displayed. "The speaker," says the correspondent, "was nonplussed. The women shrieked, wept, expostulated. . . . But the police literally carried them off to the lockup and the leaders of the demonstration languish today in dungeons."

They did more than shriek and weep. The more combative of them took the offensive and the aggressive, fighting the officers who were trying to persuade them to behave themselves in a womanly fashion.

It is difficult to think of persons who conduct themselves after that fashion as ladies of refinement and culture. If they had been attacked by ruffians and were fighting for their honor or lives, their resistance, futile as it might be, would be heroic; but these ladies of famous lineage and liberal education seem to have courted violence with the express intention of forcing arrest and prosecution.

Presumably they, like suffragists generally, recognized the late Susan B. Anthony as a leader whose example was worthy of imitation. Miss Anthony on one occasion, with a view of testing the constitutionality of the law forbidding women to vote, submitted to arrest and prosecution in the courts, but there was not a word or act of hers throughout that experience which reflected upon her discretion, her taste or her standing as a lady. She was direct and fearless of speech, but always womanly. She and her associates would sometimes invade the halls of legislation, but they did it as good citizens with unexceptionable deportment and language.

The cause of woman suffrage in England, without doubt, has been seriously impaired by the wild and hysterical demonstrations of the foolish women who thought they were promoting it by making a spectacle of themselves in lobbies of parliament.

about the lower portion of the body and was conscious until the end. He asked that word be sent to his wife and child. The death of Mr. Davis was touching. He stated to his rescuer that he knew that he was dying and knew that the end could not be far off. "Place your finger on my mouth," he said. "It feels so cool and good." He pleaded with the gentleman who was also a passenger on the train, not to leave him, and for ten minutes this man stayed with him until he saw that nothing more could be done for him.

Train Ransacked.

One of the worst phases of the accident was the heartless manner in which a few passengers and some of the attaches, especially some of the porters of the Atlanta train, ransacked the wrecked cars for plunder. [illegible]

E. M. Curtis, of Jamestown, N. Y., who was a passenger on the Jacksonville train, saw one porter go through a lady's grip. He saw him throw away such things as were of no value to him and appropriate those things that he wanted. Mr. Curtis declared that he would have certainly killed the porter if he had had something to do it with.

Not a few passengers engaged in this ghoulish business, and a large number of valuables and much money which was scattered about the wrecked trains was taken.

Curtis a Hero.

Mr. Curtis, who was on his way to High Point, N. C., on a business mission, was the hero of the hour. It was claimed by some of his fellow passengers that to his work and generalship belongs the credit of the rescue of a dozen persons who would have perished but for his efforts.

Several persons not seriously wounded were taken out from the two cars that were burned and six negro passengers were taken from the combination coach of the forward train. They were literally covered with heavy baggage which had been thrown through the light partition between their portion of the car and that set apart for the baggage.

They were badly hurt, most of them having broken legs, some of them both legs broken, and one or two with fractured skulls. All of them have numerous cuts and bruises, but the physicians attending them believe all will recover with the possible exception of an aged woman who may be fatally hurt. These were brought to the city hospital.

As soon as the news of the wreck was received here, Doctors Ferrell and Carroll were taken to the scene on a special train. They gave attention to the wounded and an hour later Doctors Tallaferro, Farrow and Rawlings went on another special. One of the fire engines of the Lynchburg department was loaded on a flat car and hurried to the wreck to extinguish the flames among the wreckage.

Coroner W. Davis went to the wreck to hold an inquest, but found the bodies had been removed. He could not say tonight what steps would be taken.

Cause of Wreck in Doubt.

The Jacksonville express had the right of way in the block. The engine broke away from the train and proceeded a mile beyond Lawyers before the engineer noticed he was without his train. It may be that when he passed Lawyers the operator there gave a clear block without noticing whether the rear end markers were visible before he did so. In the absence of an official statement this explanation is being accepted here. It is possible that the Rangoon operator let the Atlanta train into the block on an order from Lawyers that the block was clear, the operator there thinking the trainless engine cleared the block and that the rear train was past Rangoon before it could be stopped when the mistake was discovered. Should investigation show that the Lawyers operator gave a clear track without noticing the absence of rear-end markers, then the cause of the accident was at Lawyers.

At 10:30 o'clock tonight it was ascertained from a reliable source that D. J. Maddux, the operator at Rangoon, who was on duty at the time of the accident, had disappeared. Railway officials are trying to locate him.

Morgan Greatly Affected.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—News of the death of Samuel Spencer in the Southern railway wreck reached J. P. Morgan just as he was about to enter Grace church to attend the special Thanksgiving day service.

When the news of his friend's death was told him, Mr. Morgan turned deathly pale.

"Sam Spencer?" he almost shouted. "My God, man, is Sam Spencer dead?"

He trembled until his limbs almost gave way. Several friends, thinking he was about to collapse, ran to him.

"This is a terrible shock," Mr. Morgan said, when he had somewhat recovered himself.

"I can't say anything now. I was never so shocked in my life."

A friend helped the financier to a carriage and he was driven home.

MAY BE COURT-MARTIALED

Major Penrose Said to Have Criticised Superior Officers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—President Roosevelt's ire is up and Major Charles W. Penrose, who was in command of the battalion of the Twenty-fifth infantry at the time of the outbreak in Brownsville, Tex., is to be called to account because he lost control of his emotions when he saw the last of his soldiers mustered out of service.

"Without honor," Major Penrose is quoted as saying, "here goes the last of the best-disciplined, best-behaved and best-regulated battalion in the United States army."

Major Penrose has been asked for an explanation. If he admits having made the remarks in question, he will be court-martialed for violation of the army regulations, which explicitly forbid criticism of superior officers.

AS THEY SAID IT.

From the Cornhill Magazine.

Sir Robert Purvis, addressing his old constituents at Peterborough in defense of an act of parliament under whose operation some of them had gone to prison for a week, said: "That, gentlemen, is the marrow of the education act, and it will not be taken out by Dr. Clifford or anybody else. It is founded on a granite foundation, and it speaks in a voice not to be drowned by sectarian clamor!"

We must go to Germany to beat that. In an address to the present emperor's father, a Rheinlander mayor said: "No Austria, no Prussia, one only Germany. Such were the words the mouth of your imperial majesty has always had in its eye."

HOLD DEDICATORY EXERCISES

Distinguished Prelates Attend Ceremonies in Cathedral of the Sacred Heart at Richmond.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 29.—With dedicatory ceremonies participated in by the most distinguished Catholic prelates in this country, the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan, today took its place as one of the greatest institutions of its kind in the United States, and a monument of the church in the south.

The ceremonies, beginning with the consecration at 6 o'clock this morning, and followed at 11 o'clock by pontifical high mass, attracted a large crowd to Richmond. Mr. and Mrs. Ryan came from New York to attend.

Not only were Cardinal Gibbons, Apostolic Delegate Falconio and many [illegible] of the United States conspicuous figures in the service, but state and city officials, including Governor Swanson and the mayor of Richmond, and a host of prominent laymen were assigned special seats in the cathedral, admission to which was strictly by invitation.

The church is a magnificent edifice of Italian renaissance architecture, occupying a picturesque and commanding location, embracing an entire block in the heart of the fashionable part of Richmond and facing Monroe park, with its acres of grass and trees. Within the building are five altars and two chapels.

The cathedral was first contemplated by Monsignor McGill, the bishop of Richmond, in 1865, who purchased the eastern portion of the block on which the granite pile now stands. The remainder of the block was purchased by Bishop Keane in 1886. The cornerstone was laid June 4, 1903, by the late Father Conway, of the Jesuit order, then at Saint Ignatius' church in New York. Right Rev. Augustin Van DeVyver, bishop of Richmond, a friend of Mr. Ryan, interested the latter in the matter of building the cathedral.

JEWELRY MADE BY WOMEN.

Are Successful in Mounting Semi-precious Stones in Gold.

From the Washington Post.

Woman goldsmiths and jewelers are having considerable success both in Europe and America. The ablest of them are regularly instructed in schools of design and in the shops of working jewelers and goldsmiths.

Much of their work is in the semi-precious stones now popular. These owe their charm to the tasteful fashion in which they are mounted and arranged.

The woman jewelers have been especially successful in designing chains, collars, necklaces and the like in which semiprecious stones are mounted in gold of pleasing decorative design. An eye for color, a sure taste in matters of form, and deftness and manual skill are the necessary equipment for this kind of work.

Some of the woman jewelers are skilled in other departments of the trade. They are apt at enameling, an art to which women have only of recent years given attention.

It takes a short time for a clever girl to learn the art of enameling on copper and many small copper vessels, enameled within, and hatpins, watch fobs and the like are made by women. A school in Boston teaches copper enameling to a small class of women annually and within the year most of them acquire considerable skill in the art.

Rings elaborately chased and set with precious stones are made by woman jewelers, though they do less of such work than work in enamel and in semiprecious stones. Most of the work in precious stones is still in the hands of men and there are few woman diamond cutters.

The advantage that the women find in this kind of work is that it may be done at their own homes or wherever they can set up a vise, a small forge and crucibles.

Some of the woman jewelers work for the trade, and it is a good deal easier for them to obtain from the employing jewelers work in semiprecious stones than in more expensive jewels.

A good deal of the work of the woman jewelers is done upon private orders and some of the most successful among them owe their reputation and trade to the quiet advertising that they obtain from patrons who have been pleased with their work. The young woman who manages to attract the interest of a few rich women is pretty well assured of profitable employment.

The fashion in jewels is constantly changing, and there is a growing demand among the wealthy for specially designed jewels. Many wealthy women are easily interested in new materials and methods in jewels, and it is to such patrons that some of the woman jewelers look for employment.

WHALES YOUNG AT 100.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

Elephants are probably the longest-lived members of the animal kingdom, averaging 100 and 200 years.

As a general rule there is a direct relation between the duration of life and the time required to develop fully, but to this there are exceptions. The cat is mature before it is a year old, and may live 20 years.

Size, also, seems to have a certain relation to longevity, the elephant and whale being the longest lived of mammals, but here, again, we have the little beaver with a life more than twice as long as that of the [illegible].

The average age of other animals are as follows:

Ass, 30; bear, 20; beaver, 50; camel, 75; cat, 15; chamois, 25; cow, 15; deer, 20; dog, 14; fox, 14; goat, 12; Guinea pig, 4; hare, 8; hippopotamus, 20; horse, 25; hyena, 25; jaguar, 25; leopard, 25; lion, 40; monkey, 17; moose, 50; ox, 30; pig, 15; rabbit, 7; rat, 7; rhinoceros, 20; sheep, 10; squirrel, 8; stag, 50; tiger, 25; wolf, 20.

While the average age of the whale is somewhere between 100 and 200 years, Baron Cuvier, the celebrated French naturalist, asserted that it was probable that some attain the age of 1,000 years.

BE CHARITABLE to your horses as well as to yourself. You need not suffer from pains of any sort—your horses need not suffer. Try a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. It cures all pains. J. M. Roberts, Bakersfield, Mo., writes: "I have used your Liniment for ten years and find it to be the best I have [illegible] for man or beast." Sold by the [illegible] Drug Co.

NO BOYCOTT ON JAP. GOODS

Relations Are Explained by Chinese Minister—Attaches No Great Importance to Reports.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Sir Chentung, the Chinese minister, says there is much misunderstanding about the action of China in limiting the number of young Chinese students who are to go into Japan to complete their education.

There are about 12,000 Chinese students in Japan, and of these perhaps 8,000 are Chinese young men who have been highly educated in their home and are in Japan to study for a few months preparatory to becoming teachers in China.

The minister says this system of having young men take such a course in Japan has not been satisfactory either to the Chinese or the Japanese. The universities in Japan did not care to have men take brief courses, and then pose as having been prepared especially for some line of work of which the institution made a specialty. Neither did this sort of preparation prove satisfactory to the Chinese. Consequently the Chinese government has decided to forbid the provinces sending young men for such short courses, and will insist that three or four year courses be taken by students going to the Japanese schools.

The Chinese minister attaches no importance whatever to reports from the Orient that China is about to boycott Japanese goods, and expressed the opinion that this rumor may have risen out of the misunderstanding of the Chinese government's action concerning its students going to Japan.

CHECKS FOR PAPERING OFFICE

More Than 8,000 Used—Uniform in Color and Design.

From the Kansas City Star.

"No, sir; I'm no tile worker; you'd better send up to one of the mosaic shops."

That's what a paperhanger said to a member of the Stoller Commission company about three years ago when the firm made known its purpose to paper the walls of its office with canceled checks. The checks were the accumulation of several years. The idea of using them for wall paper in fanciful designs was a whim that became a determination later on.

The third paperhanger that answered the call agreed to do the work. And he did it artistically. The checks were all of one form and were put on the walls in panels with gilt moulding around the edges. There is no check on the walls that represents less than $1,000. One is made out for $30,000. The total amount of money represented in one room is more than $8,000,000. In another room that was decorated in this way is a small panel of about forty checks that represent a quarter of a million dollars.

The checks are so much alike and are matched so evenly upon the walls that the extraordinary design is not noticed upon first entering the room. The panels look as if papered with ordinary wallpaper of an oblong pattern. On every check appears the signature of Frank P. Stoller, one of the firm. "I never thought," he said, "of how much money I had signed away until I had the walls papered with these checks. Some of these checks tell stories. Here's one that was given to Kirk Armour for the last bunch of cattle that he produced on his farm at Waldo, Mo. And this one for $12,000 was drawn to pay for the first shipload of cattle that we shipped to Cuba after the war."

More than 2,000 checks were used in papering one of the rooms.

MAKING COTTON FOR WORLD.

English Spinners May Invest Heavily in American Land.

From the New Orleans Picayune.

Some months ago a number of leading cotton manufacturers of Lancashire, England, got together and appointed a private commission to visit the United States and make observations on the area where cotton is grown and to take notes upon the methods and processes of marketing the staple.

The commission visited this country and this city, the fact having been recorded in the papers at the time. The members of the commission, having duly returned home, made a report of their mission and with it offered a number of recommendations.

The members of the commission say that the Americans hope to form a gigantic trust to control the cotton produce market through the control of the production of cotton. They declare the people of England do not realize to what an extent the Americans are attracted by the trust principle.

They point out that "the antidote to a trust that is squeezing the life out of an American industry seems to the Americans to be in the formation of a stronger trust." So the trust-ridden planters appear to aim at the removal of the evil by the addition of another.

The members of the commission say that they were often pressed to throw in their lot with the planters and become cotton growers themselves, thus imitating the example of some planters who are investing money in cotton mills and declaring their intention to build sufficient mills to use all the cotton grown. If an ungrateful world should hesitate to pay for it at the rate of 11 to 15 cents a pound. The commission suggests that the English spinners become interested in the production of cotton, which they say can not be regarded as hazardous provided a competent manager and suitable land at a reasonable price, with sufficient labor, can be obtained.

They recommended that a committee be appointed immediately to consider the advisability of buying land. It is stated that another commission is to be sent out to the American cotton fields, which commission is to be invested with greater powers and will witness the methods of cotton picking, which the members of the former commission did not see.

In view of the impracticability of securing a sufficient supply of cotton from any of the British colonies it is more than likely that Englishmen will purchase large bodies of land in the southern states and raise their own cotton. There is land enough in these states for the production of 30,000,000 bales, while intensive cultivation will double the amount. Let the Britishers come. We will still make cotton for the whole world, no matter how much is consumed.

WICKED JOHANNESBURG.

From the Baltimore Sun.

Miss Agnes E. Slack, of London, secretary of the World's Christian Temperance union, said that Johannesburg is about the wickedest spot on earth. The very air there seemed to her charged with the fever of accumulating wealth [illegible] society from top to bottom is dishearteningly sordid. In the Dutch districts, where the people make their living growing grapes for the wine markets of Europe, she said the negroes are generally paid part of their wages in intoxicants, with the result that they all become beastly drunk several times a week. Ladysmith, she said, with all its monuments and graves on the mountain around, is a gloomy settlement.

The western provinces of Cape Colony, she said, are exquisitely beautiful, and several of the towns literally blazed with gloriously colored flowers. Purples, reds, pinks and yellows there mingled in brilliant profusion. Ferns that are rare in western hothouses grow there in abundance.

A YEAR OF BLOOD.

The year 1903 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tacket of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood; which flowed so copiously from Mr. Tacket's lungs that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a frightful cough had brought me at death's door, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, with the astonishing result that after taking four bottles I was completely restored and as time has proven permanently cured." THE MISSING NOTE.

From Iskra.

One of the leading tenors in Moscow was called upon to sing an opera in which one note was much too high for him, but he got a man in the orchestra to come in just at the right time and supply the note. In exchange the tenor was to take him to supper. The plan answered well, the applause was loud, but the tenor forgot all about the supper. Next time he sang the opera he went to the front of the stage, put his hand on his heart and opened his mouth as wide as he could. His discomfiture was great when the expectant hush was broken by a voice from the orchestra, saying: "Where's my supper?"

WHAT THE PRESS AGENTS SAY

"A DESERTED BRIDE."

The popular melodrama entitled "A Deserted Bride" will be the attraction at the Opera house tomorrow, matinee and night. Matinee prices will be, children 25c, adults 50c. Evening prices will be 25c, 50c, 75c, $1. This is a pure American play, depicting love and pathos, hate and passion, a play that touches the heart. There is one way, and the only way, to appreciate this great play, and that is to see it. For nearly three hours intense dramatic scenes and many laughable complications follow each other in rapid succession. An unequaled company of artists has been engaged, each one for his or her special character, and a wealth of beautiful scenery, startling mechanical effects and mysterious electrical devices, have been provided.

EZRA KENDALL AT THE OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT

A great favorite, Ezra Kendall, will appear at the Opera house this evening in his new play, "Swell Elegant Jones," a wholesome American comedy, by Herbert Hall Winslow, who wrote Mr. Kendall's former success, "The Vinegar Buyer," which is familiar to the theatergoers of this city. Ezra Kendall is a comedian pure and simple. He starts a tear and ends it with a laugh. He plays the character of Tom Jones, who is called "Swell Elegant Jones," for the lavish manner in which he spends his money, and the way he puts our currency into circulation would make any philanthropist sit up and take notice. Not realizing that his spendthrift proclivities are overtaxing his bank account, and expecting a great sum of money from a mining claim that turns out to be worthless, he wakes up one morning to find himself with just the price of a shave. A scheming lawyer, who was a former suitor of Mrs. Jones, learning that Jones has become penniless, and that Mrs. Jones is about to fall heir to a fortune left by her uncle, with the aid of a female detective manages to estrange Jones and his wife, and Mrs. Jones procures a separation. Of course, it all comes out right in the end, fortune returns, and Mrs. Jones, realizing that she has made a great error, begins begging forgiveness of her faithful husband, and it all ends happily, as it should.

There are many characters in this rural comedy that are sure to appeal to all lovers of good, wholesome comedy, and the cast of capable artists which surround Mr. Kendall should make this one of the best treats of the season. Mr. Kendall carries the largest production that he has ever had, and the scenes are taken from a health resort in southern Indiana and are true to life.

FROUDE'S INACCURACIES.

From the Century Magazine:

What competent critic today doubts the general trustworthiness of Froude's "History of England." In writing which he was obliged to transcribe from Spanish masses of papers which even a Spaniard would have read with difficulty? Yet what sweeping charges of inaccuracy were long made against him. Writing in 1870 to a friend, the historian says: "I acknowledge to five real mistakes in the whole book—twelve volumes—about twenty trifling slips equivalent to i's not dotted and t's not crossed; and that is all that the utmost malignity has discovered. Every one of these rascals has made a dozen blunders of his own while detecting one of mine."
